Twelve Persons Killed In Crash of United Air Lines Transport Plane

Dead Include Nine Passengers, the Veteran Pilot, a Former Army Airman, His Co-Pilot, and the Stewardess.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

Plane Struck Top of Hill, Losts Its Propeller and Plummeted Against Another Hillside.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 7 (AP).—Twelve persons—nine passengers and a crew of three—were crushed to death early today as a United Air Lines transport plane crashed on a knoll on the rolling plains 15 miles west of here. The ship was flying from Oakland, Calif., to New York.

The veteran pilot, H. A. (No Collision) Collison, apparently had started down from high altitudes in ideal weather with his twin-motored (Beoing) liner, preparatory to a scheduled stop here, when he struck the top of one hill, lost his propellor and plummeted against another hillside.

The plane smashed into the ground about 2:15 a. m., mountain standard time. It was torn and twisted but did not catch fire.

After a regular stop at Salt Lake City just before last midnight the cross-country liner (U. A. L. Trip No. 4), had reported its progress by radio and asked wind information just five minutes flying time west of Cheyenne.

The crumpled wreckage was found by a fleet of searchers dispatched from here near dawn just as another band of airmen took off from Salt Lake City to seek a Standard Oil Company transport ship missing, in the briny area of Great Salt Lake with three persons aboard, since Sunday.

List of Those Killed.

Besides Co-pilot George Patty and Stewardess Leona Mason a tentative list of those killed in the disaster was announced by United Air Lines as follows:

G. H. Miner, Park Lane Hotel, Chicago.

C. H. Matthews, Jr., Pittsburgh.

John F. Cushing, Evanston, Ill., president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Co., of Chicago.

Roy R. Bane, en route from Salt Lake City to Chicago.

Vincent Butler, of San Francisco.

Miss Juliet Hillman of Pittsburgh.

Walter B. Crandall, Associated Oil Co., San Francisco.

Helen Warren, a company employe of Chicago.

Mrs. Cathcart, of Portland, Me.

The plane, which carried mail as well as passengers, was due in Cheyenne at 2:19 a. m., mountain standard time.

Five minutes before he was due to land, Collison inquired of the air field here for ground wind information.

"The plane apparently struck the top of one hill, lost its propellor and engine and then bounced, nose first, against the top of another hill," said Bill Hoare, of United Air Lines.

"We have been unable to determine the exact cause of the accident. The weather was excellent and it appeared Collison had good flying speed.

"When Collison did not land after 45 minutes, we sent other planes out to try to locate him," said Hoare.

"They flew until dawn before the wreckage was sighted near the brow of a hill, just east of the Silver Crown Radio Beacon."

Was a Careful Pilot

Collison, a former army airman and a mail flier since 1931, won his sobriquet for careful piloting. He held many speed records of the early days of mail flying, having participated in the flight of half a ton of mail from San Francisco to Chicago with four other pilots in 12 hours and 38 minutes, maintaining an average speed of 141 miles per hour.

The airliner left Oakland, Calif., last night at 6:35 p. m., Pacific standard time, and was due to arrive in New York at 2:15 p. m., E. S. T. today.

Pilot Robert Ferguson of the U. A. L. searching fleet, operating from Cheyenne, was first to locate the plane. About 5:45 a. m., mountain standard time, Ferguson sighted the wreckage from the air.

"A dark mass of debris was about all I could see," said Ferguson. "I merely circled the scene and returned here."

P. J. Anderson of Wyoming Air Service, assisting the searchers, was the second flier over the scene.

"It seemed to me that several bodies were lying outside the plane," said Anderson. "I had to come down fairly low because from higher altitudes the wreckage might have been passed for a grazing herd of cattle."

T. Joe Cahill, Cheyenne police chief, raced to the scene by motor car and described it in these words:

Was A Terrible Sight

"It was one of the most terrible sights you can imagine. The bodies were like broken boxes. The airplane had skidded several hundred yards along the hillside.

"Debris made a trail along a ridge at the foot of the knoll. The ship itself was ripped apart. There were some indications, from the position of the wreckage, that the plane had attempted to climb but had been shoved back by striking the hilltop, as if a giant hand had pushed it into the ground."

Pittsburgh Banker

Pittsburgh, Oct. 7 (AP)—Charles M. Matthews, Jr., killed in an airplane wreck in Wyoming today, served as vice president of the $200,000,000 Union Trust Company and was one of Pittsburgh's outstanding bankers.

Matthews, about 40, a friend of the Andrew W. Mellon family, had been on a vacation in Alaska and spent some time in California on business before starting the return trip.

Juliet Hillman, also killed in the crash, was prominent in Pittsburgh social circles. Her father, John Hartwell Hillman, Jr., is chairman of the board of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company. She had been visiting friends in Nevada.

U. S. Supreme Court Considers the New Deal

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP).—Meeting for the first time in its $11,500,000 marble mansion, the Supreme Court assembled today for a new term expected to have vast effect on the future of the nation.

Decisions on a number of New Deal policies subjects of far-reaching controversy are anticipated before the term is over.

Already before the court are five cases challenging the validity of the AAA act, the Tennessee Valley Authority Legislation, the Bankhead Cotton Control Act and sections of the National Industrial Recovery Act providing for donation of money to aid in constructing municipal electric plants and for condemnation of land for slum clearance projects.

Other New Deal statutes which appear destined for Supreme Court attention include the Guffey Coal Regulation Law, the Social Security Measure, the Labor Disputes Act, the new Railroad Pension Plan, the Revised Farm Mortgage Moratorium Law and the Utility Holding Company Regulatory Law.

Approximately 500 cases are on the docket, 100 more than a year ago but about the average for the beginning of the term, which continues until June.

The program for today's session beginning promptly at noon (Eastern Standard Time) was brief, consisting only of motions and the admission of attorneys to practice. Next Monday the court will begin hearing arguments and announce whether it will review 400 of the cases filed. There will be no opinions for a few weeks.

Schebilski Is Held On Charge of Second Degree Assault Here

Charged With Hitting John Palen of Gage Street Over the Head With a Club, Felling Him to Ground and Then Firing a Charge From Shot Gun Over His Head.

John Schebilski of 49 Gage street is under arrest of a charge of second degress assault while John Palen, who resides in the same house, is nursing a sore head, inflicted it is claimed, by John Schebilski with the aid of a club. This morning in police court the hearing was adjourned to Wednesday and bail fixed at $1,000.

According to the story Palen told the police he was having a little party at his home on Gage street on Saturday night. About 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning Palen said he stepped out into the hall and there stood Schebilski with a club in his hands. Palen said that Schebilski struck at him with the club, inflicting a deep gash on the head. Later Palen had the wound treated at the Kingston Hospital.

The blow floored Palen and as he lay on the floor he said that Schebilski came out with a double-barreled shot gun and discharged one barrel, the charge flying over Palen's head, but not hitting him.

In his written statement to the police Palen did not state what he thought provoked the assault.

Schebilski has been in police court before. The last time he appeared he was found guilty of beating his wife and a fine was imposed by Judge Culloton. At that time the Schebilski family lived on Ravine street, but shortly afterward moved to the Gage street address.

Runaway Boy Here.

Wilfred Desrosiers, 17, of Hartford, Conn., was picked up here on a charge of vagrancy over the weekend. The police after hearing his story sent a teletype message to the Hartford police department and received a reply to the effect that the youth had run away from the Belchertown State School a Belchertown, Mass., on September 3.

When the case came up for a hearing today in police court Judge Culloton adjourned the hearing to Wednesday and fixed bail at $25.

Opponents Vote Down Woodstock School Plan Saturday By 509 to 437

Citizens' Committee for Central School Receives Set-back by Majority of 72 Votes at All-Day Balloting.

VERY HIGH TENSION

Committee Promises That Proposition Will Be Brought Up Again In Year's Time.

Woodstock, Oct 7—In spite of the untiring efforts during the summer of the Citizen's Committee for Central School, the plan laid out by them at the meeting in the M. E. Hall Saturday was defeated by a vote of 509 to 437 in a record breaking ballot of over 900 votes. Outside of general elections no other question brought up in Woodstock has ever received so large a vote. A steady stream of voters filed past the ballot box from 11 a. m. until a little after 3 p. m.

The committee, which has worked all summer to obtain new data on a new school and has distributed bulletins from time to time, though defeated and disappointed feels that the majority of 72 votes was small enough to be encouraging for a future time in which the question again will be brought up. They feel that as time goes on more and more people will see the desirability of a modern school in place of the inadequate conditions of the present time. The opponents of the central school are very pleased with the result, believing that they have escaped a heavy tax increase.

Tension High, But No Trouble

Contrary to the expectations of most of those gathered at the hall the meeting was conducted throughout with order and dignity. Troopers had been on the scene and many people were prepared for angry outbursts of personal feeling, which, however, failed to materialize.

A great deal of time was spent, with much confusion, during the election of a chairman for the meeting. After the nomination by John A. Kingsbury and Stephen B. Vreeland the nominations were closed in spite of protests from those against centralization, who did not know Mr. Vreeland was on the side of the opposition.

After several attempts to count the votes for chairman without taking a ballot it was finally decided that this was the only feasible method.

It was explained that anyone voting who was not eligible to do so was liable to a $10 fine. The special qualifications—posted in several places—were that the voter own or lease or have contract to buy property in Woodstock, or have a child now in school, or have the custody of a child now in school, or have had a child in school for at least eight weeks of last year.

After the suggestion, which came from Carl Eric Lindin that a ballot be taken proceedings were greatly accelerated. Mrs Josepha Whitney and Wallace Shultis were appointed tellers. Jack Hall, Walter Seaton, Mrs. Edwin Schoonmaker, Mrs. George Neher, Betty Schrader and Warren Hutty were selected to check the names of voters who filed past to ballot their votes.

Tally Method.

The counting of votes was done, in spite of protest, by tallying, a method which many felt required too much time and others felt left room for dishonesty. The tallying was done by Mrs. Grant Elwyn, Mrs. Schoonmaker, Jack Hall, Walter Chase and Judge Garrison. Judge Garrison was put in at the request of members of the opposition, who protested that they were not well represented among the tally clerks. When the tallying was completed it was found that nearly all agreed that each candidate had received exactly 165 votes. This caused some confusion until Kingsbury and Mr. Vreeland announced their willingness to serve as joint chairmen. This even division was received by many as a forecast of a similar division of votes on the school question.

Mr. Kingsbury as vice chairman took masterful charge of the meeting and with no delay rushed proceedings through, consulting Mr. Vreeland for each move. The approval of Mr. Vreeland was given, showing everyone that the meeting was conducted with fairness to both sides.

Vreeland Reprimanded

Mr. Kingsbury reprimanded his co-chairman for consulting attorney Andrew Cook, who was at the meeting Mr Vreeland replied in no uncertain terms that it was his right to consult whom he pleased. He agreed though, at the request of Mr. Kingsbury, to do his consulting openly and not in whispered conversations.

It was decided to select clerks and checkers from both sides so that no one could claim unfairness. It was this equal balance of all in charge of the meeting that kept the proceedings so well ordered and so satisfactory to both sides.

S. W. Van Hoesland and Martin Cosgrove were appointed clerks from Tracy and George Neher, sergeants-at-arms; Helen Elwyn, Mrs Warren Hutty, Harry Lain and Mrs J. A. Shultis, checkers. The tellers were the same as before.

Myron Bedell Named Grand Jury Foreman

Myron Bedell of Saugerties was appointed foreman of the grand jury and Floyd Fuller of Kerhonkson was named acting foreman at the opening of the October term of supreme court at 11 o'clock this morning. Justice Harry E. Schirick is presiding.

There was but one grand juror who did not answer the roll call, Garrett Keator of Kingston who is ill. George M. Hoornbeek of Wawarsing was the only grand juror to request being excused and he was allowed to go by the court.

On the call of the trial jurors all 36 were present. A large number requested to be excused and thirteen were allowed to go. The name of George C. Kirchner of Kingston was taken from the box, he being over age and also hard of hearing. Others excused by the court were, Paul Beaver, Edward Carpenter, Gordon Churchwell, LeRoy Davis, Wilber A. DuBois, Peter F. Emerick, William Lorenz Joseph Meehan, Richard Sleight, Henry TerBush, Fred W. Vail, Jr., Charles Weed.

Justice Schirick directed the sheriff to summon eight talesmen to serve as jurors. A recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

SEYMOUR SAGER TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL AT WORK

Seymour Sager of 92 East Chester street was taken suddenly ill while at work Friday at the Canfield Supply Company on the Strand and was removed to his home. His condition became so serious on Sunday that he was removed to the Kingston Hospital. Today it was said that Mr Sager appeared to be holding his own. Mr. Sager has been in the employ of the Canfield Supply Company and is widely and favorably known throughout the city.

President Proclaims Embargo and Issues Warning To Travelers

League of Nations Blocks an Italian Maneuver for Time

By WADE WERNER

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)

Geneva, Oct 7—The League of Nations' Council today blocked an Italian maneuver for time and ordered a public session to decide officially whether Italy has "resorted to war in disregard of its covenants."

This allegation, presented by the council "Big Six" committee, was approved by the "Committee of 13," which represents every nation except Italy which is a council member.

All that remained on the subject was a public session of the complete council to vote on the committee report. The Italians asked postponement of a public session for more time to study the report.

The Ethiopians pressed for an immediate public meeting. The Ethiopians won the battle.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation, and Tecle Hawariate, Ethiopian delegate, sat at the council table. In a tense atmosphere, and with every inch of the council hall filled, Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, of Argentina, council president, invited the two parties to comment on the report of the committee of 13. Aloisi spoke first.

It means that Italy may be deemed to have committed an act of war against all members of the League in her attack on Ethiopia.

(Article XII is an agreement among League members that they will "in no case" resort to war until three months after a report by the council. Under Article XVI, the covenant provides: "Should any member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenants under Article XII, XIII or XV, it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations." * * *).

The Committee of 13 was taking action on a report submitted by the council's "Big Six" committee composed of Great Britain, France, Portugal, Rumania, Denmark and Chile.

The Big Six reported they had "arrived at the conclusion that the government of Italy has resorted to war in violation of Article XII."

The "Committee of 13," in adopting this conclusion, modified the wording slightly to adhere closely to the text at the beginning of Article XVI of the covenant.

League officials said this change did not weaken the report of the smaller committee and, in fact, it gave notice that the council definitely was operating under Article XVI which is concerned with sanctions against aggressor nations.

It was stated that under present plans, the League Assembly, when it meets Wednesday, will be asked to coordinate the economic and financial sanctions automatically called for against Italy.

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—The United States was fully embarked today upon a precedent-shattering neutrality policy capped by a formal proclamation by President Roosevelt admonishing American travelers to keep off vessels of Italy and Ethiopia.

As the 17,000 men of the coast guard and customs service took up today the task of preventing any shipment of American arms and munitions to the two embattled nations, diplomats in the world's capitals were busy studying the President's triple move over the weekend.

Besides proclaiming the embargo and the warning to travelers—two steps provided for in the recent neutrality legislation adopted by Congress—the President went beyond the text of that legislation in another move. He declared in a statement that Americans who engage in "transactions of any character" with either of the belligerents will "do so at their own risk."

This marked a distinct reversal of policy. In the past the United States has argued for the right of neutral citizens and commerce to "freedom of the seas." Passionate controversy about deaths and injuries suffered by Americans and about restrictions on American trade preceded this country's entry into the World War.

The warning to travelers was issued last night. Since Ethiopia has no merchant marine, the latest proclamation affects only the ships of Italy.

After quoting the authority conferred upon him by the neutrality law, the President proclaimed:

"Whereas I find that the protection of the lives of citizens of the United States requires that American citizens should refrain from traveling as passengers on the vessels of either of the belligerent nations:

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the said joint resolution of Congress, do hereby admonish all citizens of the United States to abstain from traveling on any vessel of either of the belligerent nations contrary to the provisions of the said joint resolution; and

"I do hereby give notice that any citizen of the United States who may travel on such vessel, contrary to the provisions of the said joint resolution, will do so at his own risk."

The effect of this proclamation on the ships of Italy has yet to be calculated.

Cancelled Passages

New York, Oct. 7 (AP). An Italian line official, commenting on President Roosevelt's proclamation that Americans who travel on belligerent ships do so at their own risk, said today he was aware of no cancelled passages.

"I can't say about the future," said Aroldo Palanca, the line's general manager for the United States and Canada, "but at present the people know there is no risk in going into the Mediterranean."

President Satisfied

Enroute with President Roosevelt on the Pacific, Oct. 7 (AP). President Roosevelt was represented today as being satisfied his two proclamations had sealed the United States' neutrality in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

The proclamations placed an embargo on shipments of arms to the belligerent nations and warned Americans they would travel at their own risk on Italian or Ethiopian ships.

Mr Roosevelt plans to spend several days at the palm covered island attributed by the fishing in the vicinity. The party is scheduled to arrive Wednesday.

From Mussolini Comes Telegram Praising Men For Great Performance

Native Italian Troops Capture Several Towns and Surrounding Mountain Chain of the Fallen City of Aduwa.

ITALY BLAMED

Adoption of Report Immediately Puts Into Effect Sanctions Against Aggressor Nation.

By ANDREW BERDING

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)

With the Italian armies in the field, Aduwa, Ethiopia, Oct. 7—Italian scouts reported today the Ethiopian troops were massing in the mountains south of Aduwa.

The Italian forces which captured this city yesterday posted outposts to assure against counter-attacks.

From Premier Mussolini came a telegram, read to the assembled troops, congratulating the officers and men for their performance.

Italian officers praised General Biroli's action in capturing Entisclo and the surrounding mountain chain by native Italian troops. The chief engagement in this action was the capture of Amba Ougher, at 10,000 feet altitude, with a frontal attack under the command of General Dalmazzo while General Pesenti's forces made a flank attack.

The native troops were reinforced by four regiments of black-shirted Fascists under the command of General Diamanti.

The attackers captured 400 Ethiopian prisoners. They were not regular soldiers and the Italians reported that in many cases they found Ethiopian civilians in the line of their advance. In many cases, they said, these civilians kept working their fields.

The roads north of Aduwa still are crowded with reserves moving up to the front.

In the zone between here and the frontier, the troops are finding a good deal of coolness among the civil population. The civilians' chieftains retired with the Ethiopian troops and left instructions with their citizens to offer passive resistance to the Italians.

League Blames Italy.

Geneva, Oct. 7—The League of Nations' Council today adopted a report declaring Italy had "resorted to war in disregard of its covenants."

The adoption of this report immediately puts into effect Article XVI, which provides the application of sanctions against an aggressor nation—meaning, in its case, Italy.

Delegates of both Italy and Ethiopia were heard by the members of the League Council in public session before the report was put to vote.

Italy voted "No"—but the vote was not counted for a member is not permitted to vote on a subject in which it is interested. Ethiopia voted "Yes" as another uncounted vote.

The president announced: "Unanimously adopted by all members not a party to the dispute."

Earlier in the day, the council blocked an Italian maneuver for time and ordered the public session to decide officially whether Italy had disregarded its covenants.

A very pleasant reception was held at the home of Mrs. John Glass, at 68 Cedar street, Tuesday evening, in honor of the Rev. Clifton T. Mathews, the new pastor of the Free Methodist Church.

A musical program was enjoyed by many members and friends of his church, whom after unison singing, were favored by a solo by Robert Fatum; duets by Mrs. Fred Smith and Kenneth Deyo and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith Quartets were rendered by Mrs. Alice Rohrs, Mrs. Waterman, Kenneth Deyo and Fred Smith and the Fatum Quartet.

The class leader, Mrs. Alfred Berryan, gave an impressive speech of welcome to the new pastor, after which Fred Smith presented him with a purse from friends and members.

Following the program refreshments were served and after a prayer by the pastor and selections by the Fatum Quartet the guests departed looking forward to a year of spiritual prosperity and unity for the church under the efficient leadership of the Rev. Mr. Mathews, who comes to Kingston after a recent evangelistic tour in the mid-west.

MUSICAL SOCIETY TO MEET WITH MRS. HENRY DUNBAR

The Musical Society of Kingston will open the season of 1935-1936 with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry F. Dunbar at Hurley, Wednesday evening, October 9. Mrs. Dunbar is arranging a program of Mozart. Any member wishing transportation should communicate with Mrs. Mortimer Downer.

Events Around The Empire State

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—Maternal mortality in New York state in 1934 was the lowest, with one exception, ever recorded, the State Health Department reported today. The lowest rate was recorded in 1916.

The rate for 1934 was 50.6 per 10,000 total births. This was a marked decrease from the 60.9 rate in 1933 which was the highest in 16 years.

New York city reported the greatest decrease, while the rate in rural areas increased slightly.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—The Rev. J. Mc Cormick Beeten, 69, pastor of the Greenfield Baptist Church, Saratoga county, is dead today after almost five days of hiccoughing. He died in a hospital here yesterday from pulmonary embolism. The attack of hiccoughs began after he contracted a severe cold.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—Leading editors of the state gathered here today for the meeting of the New York Society of Newspaper Editors. Speakers include Jerome D. Barnum, Syracuse publisher, Dr Carl W. Ackerman, dean of Columbia University School of Journalism, and Harold B. Johnson, Watertown editor and publisher.

Salamanca, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—An infection which started three months ago in a thumb cut was blamed today for the death of Frederick J. Butcher, superintendent of parks here for the past eight years. He died last night in City Hospital.

It's THRILLING to take chances

You're always safe when you buy 'blue coal'

America's Finest Anthracite

INSURANCE RULING PROVES ANTHRACITE SAFEST HOME FUEL

Statistics show an increase in explosions in furnaces with the increased use of substitute fuels. These explosions do not always result in fire but often cause damage by spreading greasy soot through the house. Ordinary fire insurance does not cover such damage unless actual fire ensues. But with anthracite you are always safe. It cannot send damaging soot through the house And due to its high ignition temperature, it cannot set itself on fire.

THEY'RE off! Daredevil Steeplechase riders facing a four mile run and the toughest jumps in the world—for fun! A spill may mean a broken neck, but what a thrill they get—the thrill of taking a chance!

Sure it's fun to take chances, but—not when buying fuel. That's one time to play safe—by ordering 'blue coal'. Its blue trade mark tells you you're getting top-quality Pennsylvania anthracite! Good, pure, hard coal that has been thoroughly cleaned and screened—accurately sized—and carefully inspected to insure you the utmost in heating satisfaction.

Take no chances—order 'blue coal' by name. Telephone your nearest 'blue coal' dealer today.

Field Court Club Adds New Members

Police Make Six Arrests of Auto Drivers Who Parked Cars in Center of Field Court—Other Cases in Police Court.

Six new members were added to the Field Court Parkers Club as the result of arrests made over the week-end by the police of automobilists who parked their cars in the center of Field Court while they attended the movies. The six new members were Robert Jansen of New Paltz, Russell Lyons of Lake Katrine, Elmer Bennett of Highland, Dominic J. Diona of Highland, John Mooney of East Kingston and Melville W. Pitzer of Jersey City.

This morning in police court Judge Culloton informed them that he would take into consideration the fact that they were not residents of Kingston and so probably not aware that parking was not allowed in that street, and he would therefore suspend sentence. He said that the regulation prohibiting parking in the center of the street was due to the fact that in case a fire broke out in that street the fire department would find the street blocked.

Other Cases in Court

John C. Hubbard of Summit, N. J., arrested for speeding 47 miles an hour on Albany avenue failed to appear in court today and his cash bail of $15 was ordered forfeited by the court.

Glenford L. Miller of Ellenville, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct in fighting on North Front street early this morning, was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

John Kelly of New York, arrested for panhandling on Railroad avenue, was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

David Keihl of St. Louis, arrested for panhandling on Fair street Saturday night was sentenced to 5 days in jail.

Harold Post of Main street arrested by William Scott on a charge of petit larceny, was discharged when the information was withdrawn in court today.

Louis Samuels of Kerhonkson, arrested for parking in the fire zone on Fair street, failed to appear in court today and his cash bail of $5 was ordered forfeited by Judge Culloton.

Among Ethiopia's plentiful birds are eagles, vultures, hawks, bustards, partridges, duck, teal, guineafowl, sand-grouse, curlews, woodcock, snipe, pigeons, thrushes and swallows.

MODENA

Modena, Oct. 4.—The October meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held Thursday afternoon at Mrs. Frank Black's home, when during the business session plans were made for the following affairs: Sale of articles from the former parsonage, at the Community Hall, on October 12; food sale to be conducted in connection with the auction; the annual church fair and supper to be held Wednesday evening, October 23. Menu for supper has been planned as follows: Tomato cocktail, chicken fricassee with gravy, mashed sweet and white potatoes, peas, cabbage and tomato salad, celery, pickles, biscuits, apple pie and coffee. Committee in charge of supper: Mrs. William Doolittle, chairman; Mrs. Theodore Rees, Mrs. Frank Black, Mrs. Lillian Rhodes, Mrs. Hallock Harris, Mrs. Myron Shultis. Those attending Thursday's meeting were Mrs. Emory Conklin, Mrs. Ralph Tucker, Mrs. Cornelia Taylor, Mrs. Myron Shultis, Mrs. Anna Miller, Mrs. Theodore Rose, Mrs. Leon Chambers, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Joseph Hasbrouck, Mrs. Rufus Jenkins, Mrs. Floyd Wells and daughters, Jean and Betty, Mrs. George Dusinberre, Mrs. Hallock Harris and grandson, Floyd Paltridge, Mrs. J. David Weise, Mrs. Bevier (guest), and the hostess, Mrs. Frank Black.

Mrs. Christian Matheisen has returned from a visit to New York city.

Mrs. J. David Weise is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Bevier.

ASHOKAN

Ashokan, Oct. 9—Mr. and Mrs. Russell Colgate have returned from western New York, in which section Mrs. Colgate enjoyed a month's visit. She divided her stay with a daughter, Mrs. Edwin L. Wegner, of Boston, N. Y., and a son, Roswell E. Colgate, of Buffalo. Mr. Colgate reports running into a blinding snowstorm during the forenoon, about 50 miles west of Albany, on the trip home.

Mrs. Adelaide P. Colgate of Buffalo has come to reside with her son, Russell Colgate, on Tonche Mountain road.

Russell Colgate, the younger, a member of the infirmary staff at the Boiceville C. C. C., has returned from Boston, N. Y., where he visited with his sister, Mrs. Edwin L. Wegner, who is recovering from a recent illness.

Samuel Cohen, who went to the celebrated baths at Mt. Clement, near Detroit, three weeks ago, reports that he is much improved, and expects to return home Tuesday.

The Ladies' Aid of the Reformed Church met with Mrs. Bessie Davis Wednesday.

Irving Elfant spent the week-end with his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Elfant, at the General Store.

Penny Wedges Wedding Ring; Hammer Is Used

Mansfield, Ohio.—A hammer and chisel were part of the equipment Rev. Hayes M. Braker, Mansfield, used at a wedding. The minister asked for the ring, and a nervous bridegroom brought it forth, only to find a penny tightly wedged in it. The ceremony was delayed while Rev. Braker got a hammer and a chisel to knock the penny loose.

Presbyterians Held Rally Day Sunday

Impressive Services Held in Rondout Presbyterian Church and School on Sunday Morning—Activities of Week at the Church.

Sunday morning impressive Rally Day services were held in the Rondout Presbyterian Sunday school and later in the church. During the week members of the church had called on families who belong to the church and invited them to attend the services Sunday. As a result the services, both in the Sunday school and in the church, were well attended.

One feature of the services in the Sunday school was the promotion of two classes from the primary department, one of six boys and the other of six girls. The boys' class was taken in charge by Mrs. Van Allen, who will serve as the class's Sunday school teacher, while the class of girls will have Miss Mary O'Connor as their teacher.

Following the lesson period the school marched into the church auditorium, where, instead of the usual children's sermon by the pastor, the Rev. James N. Armstrong, Jr., the service was devoted to a consecration service in which the pastor, the elders, the school officers and teachers and the members of the school participated.

The service was very impressive.

The Men's Club of the church will hold a social evening of games on Wednesday in the chapel of the church at 8 o'clock.

The ladies of the church will hold a clamchowder sale on Friday morning at the chapel. Those desiring chowder should call Mrs. William McCullough or Mrs. Metcalf.

COTTON PAVEMENTS

The use of cotton as a highway construction material is expected to help in the future orderly distribution of large quantities of raw cotton, thus benefiting growers, textile workers and distributors. The first experimental cotton road was laid nine years ago in South Carolina. Others have been tried in Georgia. was built recently near Greenville, Miss.

The cotton used is a sort of sandwich filling between two layers of ordinary road-building material. The bottom layer is a base of mixed clay and gravel covered with a coat of tar. Then comes the "blanket" of cotton, consisting of a cotton fabric membrane known as "Osnaberg". On top of that are put two applications of asphalt mixed with fine screen gravel. Six to eight bales of cotton are consumed in a mile of pavement. The Cotton Textile Institute, sponsor of the new road, predicts that within a year $100,000,000 will be expended in highways of this type, in spite of the extra cost of $750 a mile.

The cotton road is both flexible and durable and is supposed to be free from stretching and splitting. Reduction in maintenance is expected to wipe out the extra construction costs. This sort of experiment may show one of the ways out of agriculture's difficulties—the discovery of new uses for agricultural products.

GREAT GONGS CLANG

Italy has gone primitive again, to match its own notion of Abyssinia. Has Europe ever seen, since Don John of Austria rallied his hosts for the Last Crusade, as related so vividly in Chesterton's poem, such a spectacle as dispatches from Rome described when Mussolini held his big war rally on October 2, while Emperor Haile Selassie at Addis Ababa was engaged in prayer? Here is a passage for future historians to quote:

Il Duce's speech was the climax of the greatest, maddest mass mobilization in history. Twenty million Italians, from lisping baby Boy Scouts beating tiny drums to war-bitten veterans zooming bombing planes over humanity-packed squares, the male populace rushed to the colors in a demonstration of devotion to Il Duce which raised Mussolini almost to the plane of deification.

Women kissed their children and menfolk and hurried to join hysterical throngs gathered to listen to Mussolini's voice, the further to inflame their souls. Thoughts of the carnage of war were drowned in the patriotic din of bands, the national anthem sung by thousands of voices, roaring airplane motors and all the sirens and bells in the land.

The church bells joined in this hysterical demonstration. So it has always been when the "great gongs clang", though optimists have been hoping that civilized nations, after the recent World War, were learning to control themselves and rise above such primitive mass-madness. Don John, though victorious in a great battle, came home from that war foiled and disillusioned. Will it be the same with Il Duce?

CHAMPION GOOFINESS

The American public likes to go goofy about baseball. Early October is always the season for the climax of this particular national madness. And of all American cities which have had a chance to show what they could do in this line, Detroit leads in goofiness that knows no distinctions of wealth or class. It is said by authorities on World Series history that J. P. Morgan never mingled with baseball fans when a New York team was fighting for the championship. In Washington it is an old baseball custom for presidents to attend opening games, though natural enthusiasm often is lacking. In other cities, leaders of finance and other great men manage to stay out of public view on such occasions.

In Detroit it is all different. Henry Ford participated in the general excitement last year and again this year, cheerfully chewing peanuts with the crowd. And Ford was not alone. Other powers of the motor world were on hand to back the Tigers, win or lose, with true home-town loyalty. The great and the small all go goofy together. Perhaps it is this community solidarity which has enabled Detroit to forget all about the depression so quickly. The thrilling revival of the automobile industry, Joe Louis and the Tigers themselves all seem to have worked together toward this end.

AMERICAN MUSIC

Great music is now being written in America by Americans. At least, European musicians and composers think so and are talking about it. The younger generation of American composers here is considered far ahead of any in Europe. These kind opinions are re-told to Americans by a great orchestra conductor who has just come home after a summer spent with music and musicians on the Continent. He thinks it is now time for the American public to get rid of its inferiority complex in this regard, to accept its own music as first-rate and really enjoy it.

This is reassuring. Americans have always been eager to boast of their material successes—big cities, tall buildings, and so on. But they have been fearful of praising anything in the world of art which did not bear a foreign label. Perhaps a new day is coming in which we will take size and wealth a little more calmly and will delight in artistic achievement.

EARLY SIGNS OF CANCER

It has been stated that cancer of the stomach and intestine is the easiest and hardest form of cancer to cure. This is because if it is discovered early it can be removed; if not discovered early it is usually too late to save life.

The outstanding symptoms of cancer of the stomach are loss of weight, obstruction with persistent vomiting and severe bleeding occurring in those past forty years of age.

However by that time these symptoms appear the cancer is in an advanced stage and it may be too late to save the patient. For those reasons Dr. E Jelks, Jacksonville, Florida, in the Southern Medical Journal states that if a cure is to be effected, earlier symptoms than these must be recognized.

Dr. Jelks therefore lists seven symptoms which appear early and if tests and examinations are made for cancer many lives will be saved.

1. Although constipation and diarrhoea are the two extremes, nevertheless if there is a period of constipation followed by one of diarrhoea it may be due to cancer.

2. Vomiting sometimes occurs early. It likewise may, and usually does, come "in spells", a long time before complete obstruction of the stomach and intestine occurs.

3. Pain in the "stomach" or lower part of the abdomen which the patient usually calls indigestion, which may or may not occur after eating, should suggest the possibility of cancer.

4. the patient often complains of a sense of fulness after eating and distension or bloating following meals or any other part of the day.

5. Sometimes one of the first signs of cancer is loss of appetite.

6. Anaemia or thin blood which is evidenced by paleness and dizziness.

7. Occasionally the patient complains merely of weakness, a very early sign of cancer, which may be due to internal bleeding or from a general disturbance of digestion.

Now these seven symptoms may occur to everybody without there being any cancer present and so none of us need be alarmed if some of them occur to us.

However in an individual of the cancer age these symptoms should be a warning and the family physician be immediately consulted.

Maybe we're getting too civilized. Chicago and Detroit, instead of playing ball to determine their relative merits, should be bombing each other.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: Mr. and Mrs. Lake Farnsworth and their daughter Anne have landed their cruiser at Astoria to shelter from an approaching storm, and to inspect the Farnsworth fish canneries. Anne tries to leap ashore, and is saved from the churning water by John Newman, a Finnish boy. But Rob Crocker, Anne's fiancé, seems to resent Anne's gratitude and accuses Newman of a plot against the cannery while he takes Anne for a tour of the plant. Anne asks him to explain.

Chapter Three

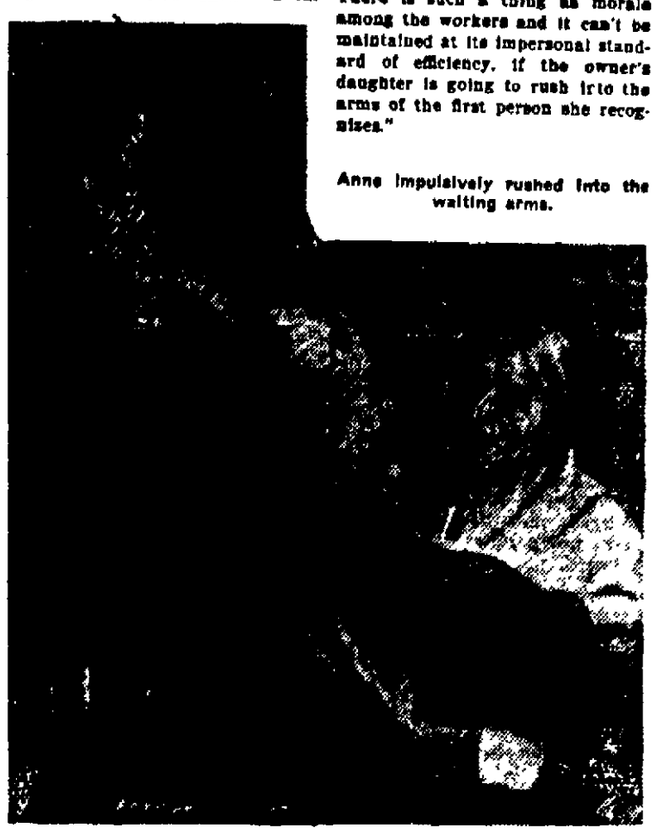
OLD NURSE

"YOU wouldn't understand," Rob answered, evasively, and turned Anne's attention to a canvas hopper before which they had stopped. "Here's where we begin. They weigh the fish in here, then send them through that chute there where they're washed and cleaned, scaled, headed and washed again . . . let's forget Newman." He pulled at her arm, and Anne, smiling at the two high-booted fishermen who stood waiting to learn the total of their catch, moved on.

"Charles was at the office when I drove in," Rob went on, "she invited me up to dinner with the family—"

"How did she know we were in town?"

"Seems your father telephoned Lee at some unearthly hour last night. As you folks haven't a car here, suppose we all drive up from the hotel in mine?"



Anne impulsively rushed into the waiting arms.

"All right." Anne paused, because they had entered the cannery proper, a great silver grey room where machinery whirled and roared. She watched as a huge fish went into an "iron chink" to reappear severed in sections.

"Will there be anyone there, excepting us?" she asked as they moved on.

"Just the Farleys."

Anne hoped her quick grimace of distaste hadn't been observed by Rob. She turned quickly to where a woman in a green and grey uniform watched a machine which deftly took a flat piece of tin, cut it, twirled it into a cylinder and passed it on.

"Here's how they're packed," droned Rob, in a flat uninterested voice.

They had paused beside another machine which was carrying empty cans along a groove, filling them with matched sections of fish, and passing them on. The woman who guarded this glanced up as they stopped, and suddenly her serious stolid expression changed to one of radiant recognition.

"Nikki," she cried, looking at Anne.

"You must be mistaken." Anne paused. Nikki, the name strummed at some dim chord of memory.

"NIKKI" repeated Anne, then "Of course, that's what my nurse used to call me." She looked at the woman a second time, then impulsively rushed into the waiting arms.

"Rob," she cried, "this is Tecla, Tecla Sorki, who took care of me the first six years of my life. It's been ages since I've seen you, Tecla, not since I was ten. What are you doing here?"

Tecla Sorki's face lost its radiance as the mild blue eyes encountered those of Rob Crocker. "I work," she answered stolidly. "You will stay in Astoria for a while?" she asked.

"A couple of days at least," Anne answered, "we're stopping at the hotel, you'll come up and see me won't you?"

"Yes," agreed the woman. "Maybe I tell you some more stories," she added, and Anne noticed the blue eyes were twinkling with mischief.

"Will you? I've never forgotten those you used to tell. Remember the one—"

"Anne, we'll have to hurry," Rob interposed.

"I know," she agreed. Then to Mrs. Sorki, "when will you come up? Tonight. I'm going to have to go to the Lee Farnsworths for dinner."

"Yes," nodded Tecla, "my Mima, she waits t'table there, tonight."

"I'll be glad to see her, and Orvi, how is he? You know, Rob, her son Orvi was only two months older than I and he used to boss me—"

"Anne," Rob caught her elbow in a firm grip, "if you intend to make the rounds of the cannery and return to the hotel in time to dress—"

"All right." Anne jerked away from his arm. "Tecla I'll be looking for you," she said, and moved away.

As soon as they were out of hearing she turned to her fiancé. "Rob, what on earth possesses you, today?" she asked.

"If you mean why didn't I want you standing there getting chummy with a cannery worker, I'll explain. There is such a thing as morale among the workers and it can't be maintained at its impersonal standard of efficiency, if the owner's daughter is going to rush into the arms of the first person she recognizes."

ANNE stopped and turned towards Rob Crocker, her dark eyes steady as they surveyed him.

"You snob," she said and walked away; walked blindly away towards the first exit she saw, and not until she had passed through and found the gale whipping her jacket about her, did she realize she was on the narrow ledge which ran along the western side of the cannery.

As troubled as the waters which swirled below her, she stared down at them. What was the matter with Rob, with her father, with everybody? They all seemed to be ready to snap at the slightest provocation.

Could it be that there was trouble brewing between her father and her fiancé? Lake had certainly been unpleasantly surprised at finding Rob in Astoria. He hadn't felt full confidence in Rob, or he would have told him his destination, and wouldn't have warned her to say nothing of their intention to visit the fish traps.

"Anne," Rob had wheeled through the door and was holding her in his arms, "Anne dear, forgive me. I've been upset all day. Everything's gone wrong. First, Yvonne calls me and tells me you've left town on some mysterious trip, then I reach the office and with work piled sky high comes the call from here telling of trouble among the fishermen.

"No trace of your father, and nothing to do but jump into the car and race down here, and you know that road. I reach here just in time to see you try to drown yourself—"

"I know, Rob," Anne agreed generously, "I know because I've felt the same way, all day long. Suppose you take me to the hotel now, and we'll finish this tour tomorrow."

At the hotel, Anne found her mother still distraught from the experience of the afternoon. "I lived a thousand years before that young man grasped the cable and swung out to save you" she declared. "Did Rob thank him?"

HIGHLAND

Highland, Oct. 4.—The annual retreat and conference of North River Presbytery will be held Monday in the Presbyterian Church at Marlborough.

A special rally day service will be held at 10:45 Sunday morning in the Presbyterian Church when promotions will take place. The Pioneer group will meet in the lecture room at 3:30 o'clock and at 7:30 the young people will hold a fireside meeting at the manse. Thursday evening the first of the cottage prayer meetings will be held at the manse at 7:30 o'clock.

A fire drill was held directly after noon at the school Thursday. The students marched out in orderly manner. Safety, not speed, is being stressed.

The Washington Club held the first parties on September 28 when they had dancing, entertainment, cards and bunco in the school gym. Dancing was enjoyed to the Brevetti brothers orchestra and $9.50 was cleared for their fund. The committee on entertainment was Angelo Fillips, Giacinto Giaiano, Mary Messina, John Maxeti. Tickets, Mary Cusumano, Leonard Tantillo, John Jacobs. Refreshments, Eileen Gaffney, Janet Finley, Marian Deyo, Mary Cusumano, Ann Trapani. The club appreciates the help of the Highland Grange, John Gaffney, Caytrina Columbe, Gloria Pampinella, Edna Eichler.

John Jacobs is seriously ill with appendicitis at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jacobs.

Mrs. Richard Dowd is sick at her home.

Mrs. Alfred L. Lane spent this week with her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Palmatier, at Glen Rock, N. J.

Mrs. Lena Wilcox of Poughkeepsie has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Abram Rhodes, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Champlin, accompanied by Mrs. Peter Hulst of LaGrangeville, left Saturday morning for Watkins Glen to visit Mrs. Jane Knickerbocker. Mr. and Mrs. Champlin returned Monday while Mrs. Hulst remained for a longer stay.

Mrs. Florence E. Cotant has been appointed district deputy state councilor of district No. 26 covering Sunshine council No. 44 and Moll Pitcher council No. 47 of Poughkeepsie, by State Councilor Cornelia Townsend of Ossining. Last year Mrs. Cotant was deputy of Vanderlyn Council No. 41 of Kingston, and a member of the state credential committee for the recent convention in Kingston. She is a past councilor of Ida McKinley council, Highland, a member of Highland chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, Judea Shrine, White Shrine of Jerusalem and First Methodist Church. She has served as school director of the town of Lloyd for the past five years and was renominated at the caucus last week.

Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, who is a candidate for re-election, also Robert Donnarumma and Abram Molyneaux have accepted the invitation to be present at the meeting of the Women's Club Tuesday evening at the Parish house of Ascension Church, West Park. Other county candidates are expected. The meeting is for 8 o'clock and everyone is welcome. An executive meeting was held Thursday evening with Mrs. John Gaffney, with the president, Mrs. A. Loren LeFevre, Mrs. Alice DuMond, Miss Hilda Osberg, Mrs. Loris Abrams and Miss Elma Raymond attending.

Mrs. Louise Welker returned Thursday from New York and was accompanied by a friend.

There was a large attendance of members at the evening meeting of Chapter A., P. E. O. Thursday evening with Mrs. LeGrand Haviland, Jr. in the absence of the president, Mrs Gordon Wilcox. Mrs. Rose Seaman, past president, presided. The report of Supreme convention, just closed at Old Faithful Inn, in Yellowstone Park, was received and read by Mrs. Dorelle S. Haynes. Refreshments were served with Mrs John F Wadlin as assisting hostess. The next meeting will observe Mother's Day, at the home of Mrs. George W. Pratt and will be a musical afternoon with Mrs. Kirsten Scott in charge.

Mrs. Martha Smith entertained friends from Voorheesville on Sunday.

The elders and trustees of the Presbyterian Church held a business meeting Friday evening at the manse.

Mrs. Mary Dubois is seriously sick at her home on lower Main street and Mrs. Minnie West is caring for her.

Dante's Inferno is to be given as a benefit movie for the Washington Club on October 10. Tickets can be procured from any member of the Senior class.

James F. Loughran of Kingston is the speaker and will show pictures taken on a western trip, for the Lions' Club dinner and meeting Monday evening at The Elms. Pictures of the recent dunker baseball game will also be shown. They were taken by Sam Friedman, who has loaned them for the occasion.

The Town Board holds a meeting Saturday evening.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—The inside story of why the two busiest of President Roosevelt's aides—Secretary Ickes and Harry Hopkins—find time to leave Washington for a fishing trip with "the boss" is a good one—

They have Comptroller General McCarl (a Republican, incidentally) to thank for their outing.

The mass of PWA and WPA projects approved by the President before he left Washington must pass the scrutiny of McCarl's office to determine their legality before actual work can be started. There are more than 30,000 of these projects and it requires on an average of around 10 days for each to be cleared.

The PWA and WPA administrators can do little until McCarl has given his rulings. Hence, and F. D. R. himself is credited with making the original suggestion, "let's go fishing."

Lynn: 'Capitol Czar'

DAVID LYNN, architect of the capitol and czar of that part of the District of Columbia, officially described as "on a plateau 88 feet above the level of the Potomac river and covering approximately three and one-half acres" has solved a ticklish problem.

Scattered throughout the house wing of the capital are busts of former members of the house who have figured large in the nation's history. Niches in the chamber of the house have been provided, but no one has been able to agree as to which should have the place of preferment. Acting on his own initiative, Lynn has arranged the following tableaux to greet members of the house when they return in January.

At the back of Speaker Garner on the Democratic side of the chamber will be the busts of Champ Clark of Missouri, former Speaker, and Oscar Underwood of Alabama, one-time Democratic floor leader. In the same position, but on the Republican side, will be the busts of Nick Longworth of Ohio, former Speaker, and James R. Mann of Illinois, one-time Republican floor leader.

In the rear of the chamber on the Democratic side Lyn has placed the bust of Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, Democratic leader of the house in the Wilson administration. To offset Kitchin on the Republican side presented a real problem for Lynn. There just wasn't a Republican floor leader available.

Lynn compromised. He placed the bust of Martin Madden of Illinois, one of the most outstanding chairmen of the house appropriations committee in history, in the niche opposite Kitchin.

He Meets 'Em

FROM Senator Ashurst of Arizona, one-time cowboy and that state's first member of the United States senate, comes a new wrinkle in campaigning.

For two hours every day the senator stands on the principal street corner in the town or city in Arizona he happens to be, in company with the citizen who knows everybody. As they come along Ashurst has the chap introduce him to those he doesn't know.

"Excellent campaign idea," says the senator. "Excellent and most productive."

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Oct. 7—Willard Mertine called on his parents at Wawarsing Monday evening.

C. Becker has returned from a trip to New Jersey where she visited friends.

Mrs. Edith Lundrup returned the past week from an 11 weeks' trip to the Pacific coast. On the way out Mrs. Lundrup's party crossed the Arizona desert and motored along the old Santa Fe Trail and stopped off at the wonderful Grand Canyon. Mrs. Lundrup spent most of her time visiting her sister, Miss Emily Jackson, at Los Angeles; she also visited Hollywood, San Diego and Omaha, and on the return trip, which was by rail, she visited her sister, Miss Myra Jackson, at Grand Rapids, Mich. Stopping at Washington she saw Mt. Vernon and visited her cousins, Misses Marion and Ann Smith, who used to board in New Paltz; she also visited another cousin, Mrs. John Giehm, who was Dorothy Smith when she attended school in New Paltz. Mrs. Giehm accompanied Mrs. Lundrup home.

Mrs. Edward Warner, accompanied by friends from Poughkeepsie, motored to Boston one day the past week to visit her daughter, Mrs. Albert Arras, and family.

The Dutch Guild will hold a business meeting in the Reformed Church on Thursday, October 10, at 4:15.

Talks to parents

Parental Camouflage

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Bringing up a child requires an inordinate amount of self-control, and the successful parent must cultivate a mask of immobility to be used at critical moments.

Mrs. X sees her daughter Isabel walking the tight-rope on the edge of the porch-roof. Her first instinct is to call the child. But if she does the child may be startled and make a misstep which will hurl her to the ground and perhaps injure her severely. All that the mother can do is to hold her breath and hope that she may be able to catch the youngster if she falls. Later, when Isabel is out of danger is the time to speak, probably the time to spank.

Sam cuts his head open and must have some stitches taken at once. The doctor wants the child's head held. To the mother such a strain seems impossible. Every stitch seems to go through her as well as the child. But the mother who, unflinchingly, can and will hold the child has won a valuable victory, and become a better parent.

Parenthood is a profession where self-expression does not go. One cannot just "be natural" and laugh or cry or lose one's temper or show affection as the moment suggests.

Often one must laugh with tears in one's voice, suppress one's laughter in a highly comic situation; seem cold and unsympathetic in the face of suffering, sympathetic over unimportant trifles, indifferent in the face of a crisis, calm at a moment of danger.

No one can do this all the time. Every parent fails to hide his feelings and unintentionally hurts the child as a result. But as far as possible fathers and even more, mothers, must be prepared to meet the unexpected and even the shocking, with apparent indifference and deal with it from an impersonal and objective angle.

Sundown Stories

The Scrubbing

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WILLY NILLY had a good idea. The little man's animal friends were certainly doing their acts well for the side-show in which they were taking part. But Sweet Face, the lamb, had been following a pig wandering around the outskirts of the county fair and Sweet Face had gone right through mud.

He was as dirty looking as could be, but Willy Nilly said to the audience:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, Boys and Girls, as you all know a lamb is a great one for following another animal. A lamb likes to be led, although he will not be driven by human people as a general rule.

"Now my friend Top Notch the rooster, is never one to follow."

At this Top Notch held his head very high.

"Oh, no, a rooster will never follow on a dog walk, for example. But to return to the subject of my lamb whose name is Sweet Face and as you will see he has indeed a very sweet expression.

"Now, Ladies and Gentlemen, Boys and Girls, I am going to fetch a bucket of water and put it on this platform. Then I am going to bring in my muddy lamb, and after that I am going to ask my other animal friends to show you how we can celebrate a week day when we wish."

Now the audience did laugh as Top Notch, Rip, the dog, the bears, the crow and the ducks all had a part in scrubbing the lamb.

And then Willy Nilly announced a change of program for the next day.

Morgenthau to Sail For Home.

San Sebastian, Spain, Oct. 7 (AP).—The United States secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau, winding up his European vacation, probably will sail for the United States Thursday. Avoiding all official visits, Morgenthau has made short sightseeing stays at Salamanca and Burgos, and plans a short stay at Biarritz, whence he will go to Le Havre.

Frank E. Huling Dies After Long Illness

Frank E. Huling of 109 St. James street died Saturday evening at his home after a long illness. Mr. Huling was one of the best known men of the city and in his passing leaves a host of friends to mourn his loss, not only in Kingston but throughout the country, as he made a very wide acquaintance during the years in which he traveled not only in this country but abroad with his famous Huling trained seal act, one of the best trained seal acts which has ever appeared in vaudeville and with the leading circuses of the country.

Mr. Huling was born at Grand Island, near Tonawanda, N. Y., fifty-nine years ago. It was there more than 30 years ago that he first became connected with the training of seals and a life of trouping which ended with his retirement in 1924, after which he remained in Kingston, where he conducted an apartment house on Green street and later on St. James street.

During the years that he was connected with the Huling trained seal act as trainer he toured the United States, Europe and Australia with his seals. He was also for a number of years connected with Ringling Brothers' circus and Barnum & Bailey, and on the vaudeville stage, covering the leading circuits of the country with the acts. Associated with him were his two brothers, Marcus and Ray Huling. The name of Huling became one of fame in the show business and their act was classified as the leading act of its kind. Ray Huling is now making a tour of Europe with "Charlie," one of the most famous of the Huling trained seals. Marcus a few years ago built Huling's Barn on the Plank Road just across the Washington avenue viaduct, and now conducts that place. It was on this site that years ago the Hulings erected their training quarters for seals and it was there that the animals were trained for the road. From 1914, when they began training quarters there, it was in Kingston that they made up their acts, trained their seals and started out on the road.

Frank E. Huling was the first of the brothers to begin the training of seals and later he took his brother, Marcus A., in with him and for 18 years they played with the leading circuses and shows. Later Ray G. Huling joined them and he had continued the business, at present being in Europe with the act. It was ill health that in 1924 caused Frank to retire from the business and return to Kingston to lead a retired life.

Fraternally Mr. Huling was a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M.

He is survived by four brothers, Marcus A., and Ray G. of this city, Herman of Joplin, Missouri, and John of Buffalo; five sisters, Mrs. Emma Laudel of Williamsville, N. Y., Mrs. Clara Grehlinger of North Tonawanda, N. Y., Mrs. Nellie Balch of Philadelphia, Mrs. Harriet Dixon Buffalo and Mrs. Gertrude Wattengel of North Tonawanda; also several nieces and nephews.

The body was shipped Sunday evening from the W. N. Conner Funeral Home here to the home of his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Wattengel, at North Tonawanda, from where funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon. Interment will be in the First Congregational Cemetery at Grand Island, N. Y.

Quicksand Doesn't Pull

It is commonly believed that a person trapped in quicksand is sucked downward to his doom. However, there is no force other than gravity and his own efforts to escape that cause him to sink and suffocate. When any one caught in quicksand tries to pull his leg out the movement is hindered by a suction produced by the pulling and which forces the other leg to sink deeper.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Sun Hatches 'Gators' Eggs

Alligator nests are built of mud, moss and grass, and are placed near the edge of the water. From two to five dozen eggs are laid in each nest, as a rule. The sun's heat provides warmth for the hatching, but the female stays near the nest in order to protect it from attack. Alligator eggs are a little larger than those laid by hens.

Food Calories

A food calorie is equivalent to the amount of heat which would raise the temperature of about four pounds of water one degree Fahrenheit. An average-sized, healthy man, sitting comfortably in a chair, will spend about 100 calories of energy per hour. This amount of energy, says an authority, is obtainable from the oxidation of about an ounce of starch or a little less than half an ounce of fat.

Lightning Makes Clean-Up

When lightning struck a farm house at Prankacka, northern Bohemia, it was thorough in its work. It tore the electric meter from the wall, swept everything off the kitchen table smashed every pane of glass in the house, ripped off part of the roof, dismantled the electric fittings in the stable, and killed the watchdog chained in its kennel. But nobody in the house was injured.

Observance of Anthracite Week

Citizens of northeastern Pennsylvania, embracing the hard coal field, are observing Anthracite Week, October 7-12, in a concerted community effort to help along the recovery of the region's basic industry upon which they are largely dependent for their very existence.

Presentation to President Roosevelt of a petition, expected to carry close to half a million signatures, urging him to increase the tariff on Russian coal from $2 to $5 a ton is one of the outstanding features of the ambitious Anthracite Week program.

The annual importation of thousands of tons of Russian coal, allegedly mined by forced labor in the Soviet Union, has cut a wide swath into the Pennsylvania anthracite market, especially along the Atlantic seaboard, and has forced collieries in northeastern Pennsylvania to curtail production sharply or to cease operation entirely.

Officials of the United Mine Workers of America are credited with the statement that the suggested tariff boost—Congress has delegated this power to President Roosevelt—will result in the re-employment of at least 4,900 Pennsylvania mine workers who lost their jobs because of the unfair competition of Russian coal. Most of the latter and their families are being supported by the government through relief agencies. Another feature of the observance of Anthracite Week in Scranton, the largest city in the region, will be a public meeting to be addressed by Frank C. Walker, director of National Emergency Council.

Practically all avenues of advertising, including the press, radio and motion picture, will be utilized by the sponsors of Anthracite Week to attract nation-wide attention to the promotion of Anthracite Week.

Presaging the observance, more than 100 business and professional men of Scranton and other cities in the anthracite region made a three-day trip to New York city, Albany and Schenectady spreading the message of Anthracite Week to the people along the route.

Fourth Ward Republicans

Tonight at 8 o'clock the Young Republican Club of the Fourth Ward will meet in its rooms, 460 Delaware avenue, to hear three speakers—Alderman-at-Large John Schwenk, City Assessor George W. Moore and Sanitary Inspector John Melville. President Joseph Fassbender anticipates a large gathering for the meeting. A special invitation is extended to all new voters and to all interested in hearing about city government.

State P.-T. A. Opens Convention

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP).—With a program designed to show parents and teachers how to preach internationalism and world peace in the home and the school, the New York State Congress of Parents and Teachers opens its thirty-ninth annual convention here tonight. The convention theme is "The Child and His World Relationship."

C. & R. Social Club

There will be a special meeting of the C and R. Social Club tonight at the engine house on Abeel street at 8 o'clock. All members are asked to attend.

Smart Dress Heavy Figures

Edited by LAURA I. BALDT, A. M.
For many years Assistant Professor of Household Arts, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, N. Y.

Here's a dress new in every line and detail and smart as it is simple

It is especially designed to give a slenderizing line through the waist and the hip area. And it has the modish cross-closure bodice, that gives a charming lengthened effect.

Rich plum shade in one of those lovely new silks that show a feeling for novelty weave made the original.

Or carry this simple to sew dress out in a thin woolen novelty.

Style No. 3327 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust.

Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

This Pictured Will Embrace Your Home, The Prodigal Son

PATTERN 5457

The Bible illustrated in an embroidered picture—a fitting decoration for every home! The Prodigal Son—that parable so well known to us all that so fittingly illustrates fatherly devotion—is shown here. With but little work, the story is clearly brought out. The figures—the important part of the picture—are to be in the rich colors that we attribute to biblical characters. You can use wool, silk or cotton.

In pattern 5457 you will find a transfer pattern of a picture 13 x 17 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; a color chart and key.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y.

Parent-Teacher Associations

Professor Beebe to Talk

Through a misunderstanding a statement was sent to The Freeman to the effect that Dr. Henry Bibby would address the P.T. A. group at School No. 2 on Thursday, October 10, at eight o'clock.

The speaker for the evening will be Edgar V. Beebe, Psychologist from New Paltz State Normal School. Mr. Beebe, who has spoken before several organizations in Kingston, will be remembered for his fine sense of humor and keen understanding of people. The public is invited to hear him talk.

No. 8 P.-T. A.

No. 8 School will hold Fathers' Night with their annual nature study exhibit, Tuesday evening at 7:30. Only children accompanied by their parents will be admitted. All children may see the exhibit after school Tuesday afternoon. The speaker for the evening will be Prof. H. Miner. Several musical selections have been arranged by Miss Eva Clinton. Refreshments will be served. All parents of pupils invited.

P.-T. A. No. 6

The regular monthly meeting of the P.-T. A. of School No. 6 will be held at the school on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Miss Agnes Smith will give a talk on her recent trip to Europe. A large attendance is requested.

Annual Chicken Supper

The ladies of the East Kingston M. E. Church will hold their annual chicken supper Wednesday, October 9, and hope the public in general will cooperate in making this supper a success. There will also be fancy articles for sale.

Cottage Prayer Meeting.

A cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Bryant, New Salem, on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Katrine Home Department.

The Lake Katrine Home Department will hold a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Stanley, Lake Katrine, on Wednesday at 2 p. m.

Smothered Mushrooms

1 pound fresh mushrooms	½ teaspoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons flour	¼ teaspoon chopped celery
½ teaspoon salt	1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon paprika	1 tablespoon butter

Scrub mushrooms and place in buttered shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with flour, salt and paprika. Add rest of ingredients. Cover and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Remove lid and brown top 10 minutes.

If canned mushrooms are used they will require 15 minutes baking.

1,000 Island Dressing

½ cup mayonnaise	1 tablespoon chopped pickles
2 tablespoons chili sauce	2 pimiento stuffed olives, chopped
1 tablespoon catsup	1 teaspoon lemon juice

Mix and chill ingredients and serve on vegetable salads.

½ cup rolled cracker crumbs	¼ cup orange juice
¾ cup chopped dates	2 eggs
½ cup nuts	1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoon grated orange rind	¼ teaspoon salt

Mix ingredients and pour into buttered pan. Bake in pan hot water 40 minutes in moderate oven. Cut in squares and serve warm with cream, lemon or orange sauce.

American Hawks as Hunters

According to the falconers the American hawks provide birds which are as suitable for hunting as any to be found in Europe. They are divided into two classes. Those in the first class are the true falcons, high-flying, long-winged birds which are considered the aristocrats among birds of prey. They include the prairie falcon, the pigeon hawk or merlin and the American duck or noble peregrine falcon. The latter nests in the highlands of the Hudson, where it builds its nest on the face of almost inaccessible cliffs.

Disfranchisement

It depends upon the state laws whether a person who has served a prison sentence becomes disfranchised. Many states disfranchise those convicted of felony; others do not. The right to vote may be returned to the person who has served a prison term by the order of the governor of the state. Federal prisoners are always disfranchised, but the right to vote may be returned to a discharged prisoner by the order of the Chief Executive of the United States (the President).

The Cape Cod Canal

Cape Cod canal, sea-level ship canal across Cape Cod, connecting Buzzards bay with Barnstable bay at Sandwich, Mass., was begun in 1909 and completed in 1914. It shortens shipping distance from Long Island Sound to Boston and other New England points about 70 miles, compared to the hazardous route around Cape Cod, beset with reefs and frequent fogs. From shore to shore the length of the canal is 8 miles, but the entire channel excavated from 30 feet depth in either bay is 13 miles.

Pattern Nos. 1598-B and 1694-B

Two Housedresses Planned for Comfort

No. 1598-B. Housedress with Nice Trimming Details

Observe the cuffs and collar, prettily scalloped, to add a note of gaiety to this simple dress. And the vestee, with little buttons to trim it. The pocket is a big triangle, applied to the skirt, and the whole thing is as neat as a pin, but a good deal more attractive.

Percales, chambrays, ginghams, cotton challis, broadcloths, and ceteens are fabrics which go into the making of the housedress for fall.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1598-B is designed in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 36-inch material, and ⅝ yard of 39-inch for contrast.

You may procure this pattern for 15 cents

No. 1694-B. Another Housedress — Fall Vintage

This dress is for those precious times when you've finished ironing Junior's shirts, and the baking is done, and you powdered your nose and take up your knitting to wait the return of the family. It is a very good dress, as you see. Panel down the front, from shoulders to hem, three buttons to fasten the blouse. The sleeves have some tucks on top to make them flare prettily, and the skirt fits smoothly over the hips, but with a bit of fullness at the hemline.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1694-B is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 3⅝ yards of 36-inch material.

Tomorrow: The military mode with leanings towards the Russian.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Fashion's latest whim is a new "day length" for dinner frocks, short enough to be worn on the street for late afternoons, yet dressy enough for staying at dinner or other semi-formal hours of the evening.

Smart affairs will see many such gowns stepping about this season and they're really very practical too, for those numerous late afternoon occasions that extend into the evening hours.

Combinations of glistening lame with other rich fabrics are also very importantly featured in these latest modes of dressy themes—charming creations that are gracefully draped and use metallic colors of gold or silver for luxurious and effective contrast.

The model sketched here pictures a new "day length" dinner frock in black and silver—this beautiful one-piece model of satin backed crepe is combined with bands of silver lame for the redingote effect at front. Silver lame also provides the medium for a draped hood that hangs down the back and for the twisted girdle at the waistline. The sleeves are full and wide at top in semi-dolman type.

A. C. Van Buren to Wed.

New York, Oct. 5 (Special)—Albert C. Van Buren, 32, a widower of 41 Maple street, Kingston, and Miss Irene Thume, 30, of 311 Columbus avenue, New York, procured a license to wed at the Municipal Building here today. They will be married November 16 in Holy Name Church. Mr. Van Buren, a son of Walter and Kate Van Buren, was born in Kingston. Miss Thume was born in New York, a daughter of Charles and Margaret McGrath Thume.

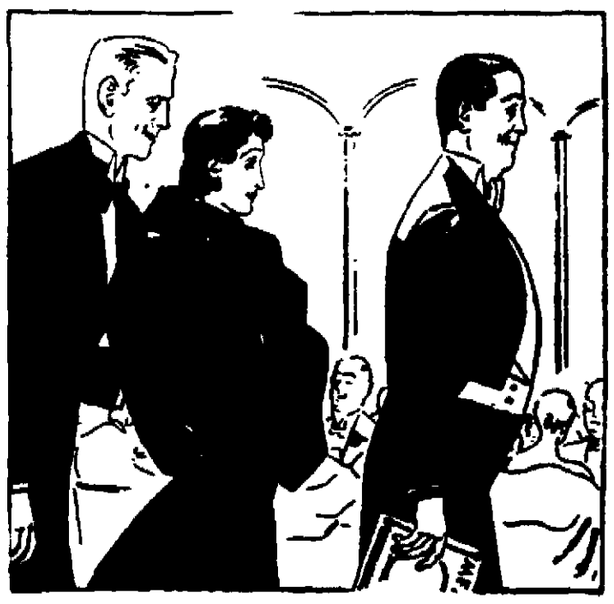
KNOWING WHAT TO DO IN PUBLIC IS PART OF EVERY-DAY ETIQUETTE



WHAT'S GOOD FORM IN A RESTAURANT?

How do you enter a restaurant? Who orders the dinner? It's knowing about such matters that gives you social assurance.

Suppose we consider the situation suggested by our sketch. A man has invited a girl to dinner. What is the correct behavior for each of them? On reaching the restaurant, the man checks his hat and overcoat. The girl prefers to wear her wrap to the table, though she might have checked it had she wished.

The head waiter greets them, and leads the way to a table. The girl follows; then the man. At the table the head waiter pulls out a chair for the girl and helps her off with her wrap. But what if there were no head waiter? Then the man would go in first. He would pull out his companion's chair and help her off with her coat before seating himself opposite.

Who Orders Meal?

The man, as host, gives the order to the waiter, after consulting his guest about the menu. It would not be good form for the girl to give her dinner order directly to the waiter. The girl does her part by being thoughtful in the matter of expense. But—clever girl!—she knows that men enjoy entertaining a girl who puts a party spirit into the occasion. So she won't appear to stint herself to save him a few pennies.

If there's dancing, both the man and the girl drop their napkins in their chairs rather than on the table. The man pulls out his companion's chair as she rises. When the bill is presented, he looks it over to see that no mistake has been made. The tip is about ten per cent of the bill.

Opponents Vote Down Woodstock School Plan

the resolution from Frank P. Graves, Commissioner of Education of the State of New York, and the petition to the town clerk.

The resolution stated: RESOLVED, That a Central School District be organized as laid out by the Commissioner of Education and a Central School be established therein to comprise districts No. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 of the Town of Woodstock, No. 7 of the Towns of Woodstock and Hurley, No. 14 of the Town of Saugerties and No. 15 of the Towns of Woodstock and Saugerties, Ulster county, New York, under the provisions of Article 6B of the Education Law

The closing words of the petition, to which were affixed the names of 24 residents of Woodstock, in all districts, were: "NOW THEREFORE, We the undersigned, residents and taxable inhabitants of such central school districts do hereby request that a meeting of the inhabitants of said districts be called and held to vote on the following question: Shall a central school district be organized as laid out by the Commissioner of Education and a central rural school be established therein under the provisions of article 6B of the education law?"

Bruno Zimm made a motion, which was seconded and passed, that the vote be taken immediately with no further discussion. This was passed overwhelmingly.

Secret Ballot

Mr Zimm also moved that a secret ballot be taken. This also was passed. It was explained that the ballot was to be taken on ballots prepared by both proponents and opponents.

Voters gave their names to Helen Elwyn and Mrs. Hutty before voting in order that any qualified voter might challenge their right to vote If a voter was challenged, he was required to make an oath that he was qualified. This only happened in a few cases.

All during the voting, especially toward the last, both sides were busy rounding up their friends, and bringing them in to vote.

At three o'clock the doors were closed and all those inside the building who had not yet voted were allowed to do so. Shortly after 3 o'clock the polls were closed, the ballot box opened and votes sorted. Mrs Whitney and Wallace Shultis sorted the votes with both chairmen looking on and making suggestions.

An unofficial tally, kept by Joseph Friedburg, showed that toward the last of the afternoon the "Yes" votes exceeded the "Noes." This made it appear, as the votes were sorted, that the proponents were in the majority. As the sorting went on through, the opponents' votes steadily increased.

Vote Announced.

As soon as the votes were counted Mr. Kingsbury called the meeting to order and announced that all had agreed that it was a fair ballot. "The people," he said, "have spoken —for the time being, that it, for 365 days." Mr. Kingsbury continued, saying, "We declare the vote to be 507 against centralization and 437 for and one blank." He explained the counting of a few incorrect ballots by saying that "We decided to judge the intention of the voters. Where this was clear we admitted the ballot," even though the balloting had been done incorrectly.

After calling out the vote Mr. Kingsbury was about to close the meeting, when Mrs. Whitney asked if the question was not to be brought up for consideration. It was decided not to do so at this time.

With this decision Mr Kingsbury declared the meeting adjourned

The proponents of centralization do not consider themselves defeated They intend to continue their work and expect that the question will be brought up for a vote, according to state laws, for at least a year from this election.

ACTIVITIES IN THE MODENA SCHOOL

Modena, Oct. 7—Miss Emily Pallsi of Beacon, Miss Doris Woodworth and Miss Margaret Tole of Newburgh are practice teachers in the Modena school this season. Miss Holt's class, from the New Paltz Normal, visited the school Thursday and observed a demonstration lesson on China in the 5th and 6th grades. They also observed story hour in Grades 1 and 2. Miss K. Florence Morrisey taught the lesson on China, and Miss Margaret Cook was in charge of the story hour.

Gloria Paltridge, a student in the eighth grade, won first prize in the reading contest at the Plattekill Grange, Saturday evening, and will enter a similar contest at the Highland Grange, Friday evening, October 11. Grades 1 and 2 visited DeWitt Grimm's store recently to gain ideas for "The Grocery Store" unit they are now working on. Grades 3 and 4 are working on a unit on "Holland." Grades 5 and 6 are storing up knowledge on "China," the unit on which they are busily engaged. Grades 7 and 8 planned a trip to Bear Mountain Museum. Stanford achievement tests have just been completed in the entire school.

Entertainment for The Kiwanis Ball to Be Held Here Friday

The entertainment program for the Kiwanis Ball at the Municipal Auditorium, Friday night, October 11, is now complete, Chairman Paul A. Zucca of that committee announced today.

In addition to the acts announced last Thursday, the Alfred Skea booking agency of New York has arranged for the presentation of Natacha Nattova, dancer extraordinary, and Alfred Cighi, baritone of the Chicago Opera Company.

These two acts are among the best procurable and the Kiwanis Club feels certain that with them and the other highlights of entertainment recently announced those who patronize the ball next Friday will enjoy one of the best theatrical treats ever offered locally.

Mr. Skea says of Natacha Nattova She is recognized as one of the world's outstanding dancers, an artist of the utmost repute, having starred in the leading theatres of London, Paris and New York. She was the featured dancer in the tremendous moving picture success, "Hollywood Revue" Her present vehicle in which she is assisted by two of the ablest of American dancers is a terpischorean treat of the rarest magnitude.

Alfred Cighi is the youngest featured baritone of the Chicago Opera Company and is rapidly becoming one of the most popular American singers He has just returned from a concert tour in South America where his wide repertoire and masterly musicianship earned the highest commendation of the very exacting Latin-American critics Cighi, says Mr. Skea, has a glorioun voice and is an artist of outstanding ability.

The other acts feature the "Three Speeds," famous lightning roller skating artists, who were at the Hollywood Restaurant, New York, for two seasons and are going to London shortly; Noyes & Ladd in novelties, Julia Gorman, songstress, formerly of the Ziegfeld Follies, and Maurice & Vincent, comedy team supreme from "The Vanities"

Chairman Zucca and his entertainment committee—Walter Kidd, Harry Halverson, Clarence S Rowland and H R St. John—feel more than proud of the program and hope that it will prove one of the most enjoyable ever put on at a Kiwanis ball

This same group has arranged for the music. Jacob Mollott s orchestra will accompany the entertainment and also play a concert besides alternating with Zucca s orchestra for the assembly dancing These two musical groups are recognized as among the best local ensembles of musicians

The musical concert will be from 8:15 to 9 o'clock at which time the entertainment is scheduled to start.

This year's ball promises to be one of the most outstanding and successful ever promoted by the Kiwanians, all of whom have subscribed for patron tickets themselves.

Many Relieved by Electricity From Painful Ailments.

A marvelous new device, known as Diathermy that can be used in your home is bringing relief to thousands of sufferers of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Arthritis, Arterio-Sclerosis, High Blood Pressure, Neurasthenia and Toxemia.

Diathermy, in simpler terms, means "Deep Heat" It does not offer a surface treatment such as that obtained from Heat Lamps, Liniments etc., but its Ultra-Modern-High frequency waves convey its soothing power through the skin penetrating deep into the affected parts.

This new marvel which has won acclaim from leading hospitals and physicians not only relieves pain, but more important, helps the body cure the disease itself. It increases circulation to all parts of the body, thus increasing the flow of healing corpuscles to the affected part for a concerted attack on the disease itself Your own physician will tell you of its value.

Diathermy has brought relief to thousands but the best way to test its power in your own case is by a demonstration

I am rich—quite rich—and still I say,
Aye' Tax the rich and make 'em pay.
You see though I've but thirty cents,
I'm rich! Yes in experience

First Soldier—What makes the Major look so angry this morning?
Second Soldier—He just received a letter marked, "Private."

It would be far more comforting to the average man if his doctor would write his prescriptions in English and send his bill in Latin.

It was during the impanneling of a jury recently that the following colloquy occurred
Attorney—Are you a property holder?
Prospective Juror—Yes, sir.
Attorney—Married or single?
Prospective Juror—I have been married for five years.
Attorney—Have you formed or expressed an opinion?
Prospective Juror—Not for five years, sir.

If calling names will help this country on the road to recovery, considerable progress has been made during the last month.

Tenderfoot—Did you have to have a lot of practice before you could shoot the ashes from the cigar in the mouth of a man standing 50 feet away, as you do in your Wild West act?
Two-Gun Bill—Practice! I should remark. I guess I spilled a couple of dozen Chinamen while I was learning that little trick.

This fellow Mussolini certainly throws a mean monkey wrench.

Customer—This milk isn't good any more.
Farmer—I know it, mister. Our cows haven't been contented since they tore down that sign with the handsome bull on it.

Some people are never satisfied until they find out something to make them dissatisfied.

Patient—Have you been a dentist very long?
Dentist—No. I used to be a steel riveter, but I got too shaky to work on high buildings and bridges.

What is needed at this time of the year is some weather so satisfactory that people won't talk so much about it.

Hubby (stumbling upstairs at 3 a. m.)—The old gray mare ain't what she used to be—
Wifey (peeved)—No; but the white mule still is!

No matter how fine clothes you have, your expression is the most important thing you wear.

Hopeless Novice (apologetically to his caddy)—I took up this game merely to practice self-control.
Caddy—You ought to have gone in for caddying, sir.

Father—Get your leather jacket off, and come with me!
Son—You are not going to lick me, are you father?
Father—I am that; didn't I tell you this morning that I'd settle with you for your bad behavior?
Son—Yes, but I thought it was only a joke, like when you tell the grocer you'll settle with him.

There are people who think a public office is just a nice place to loaf. They got this from seeing a lot of office holders who are now holding down the chairs.

Gerald—So your wife made you install television in your office?
Harold—Yes, she used to be my stenographer.

Glasco Residents in Auto Crash in Troy

Thrown through the windshield of the car in which she was riding, when the machine was in collision with another at Troy Sunday night, Rose Negro, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Negro of Glasco, was taken to Samaritan Hospital, Troy, in a critical condition.

Mrs. Negro, mother of the girl, also is in the hospital suffering from bruises about the hip. The father, who was driving, escaped injuries.

Mrs. Albert B. Matthews, 255 Norton street, Troy, who was riding with her husband in the other car, was bruised severely on her right arm. She was able to go to her home. Her husband was not injured.

Miss Negro was the most severely injured and suffered broken ribs which punctured a lung. Hospital authorities also reported she might also have suffered a fractured skull. Her condition was called serious at the hospital after the accident.

The collision took place at Jacob and 15th street, Troy, early in the evening. The car in which the Glasco family was riding overturned and the force of the impact threw the girl through the windshield to the pavement several feet away. Passing motorists took the girl and her mother to Samaritan Hospital.

Christians in Armenia Since Year 303 A. D.

The Armenian is a little above middle stature, robust, slightly olive in complexion, and usually with straight black hair, prominent nose, and high, wide brow. He is alert, adaptive, and remarkable for his industry, quick intelligence, and business aptitude. The women are frequently beautiful, with dark eyes and regular features.

Whatever their racial origin, according to Arch Farmer, in the Chicago Tribune, it seems fitting that a people living in a land so closely associated with scriptural history should early have embraced a religion founded on the teachings of the Bible. This they did, turning from sun and fire worship to Christianity in 303 A. D., when King Tirdat, converted by St. Gregory, "the Illuminator," established Christianity as the state religion. As a result Armenia became the theater of an almost uninterrupted religious warfare.

The history of the ancient kingdom of Armenia is obscure, though as the land of the Khaldians (named after the god, Khaldi) it is believed to have been a satrapy, or principality, of Persia in the Sixth century B. C. The country became essentially Armenian under Tigranes the Great in the First century of the Christian era.

Following its subjection by Persia, after King Tirdat's adoption of Christianity, and the subsequent downfall of the Persian empire in 642, the country was overrun successively by the Arabs, Heljuks, and Mongols. By 1351, however, the country reverted to the control of Armenian feudal lords, and it was at least partially autonomous until the Sixteenth century, when began the bloody rule of the Ottoman Turks.

Odors of Many Blossoms Are Far From Agreeable

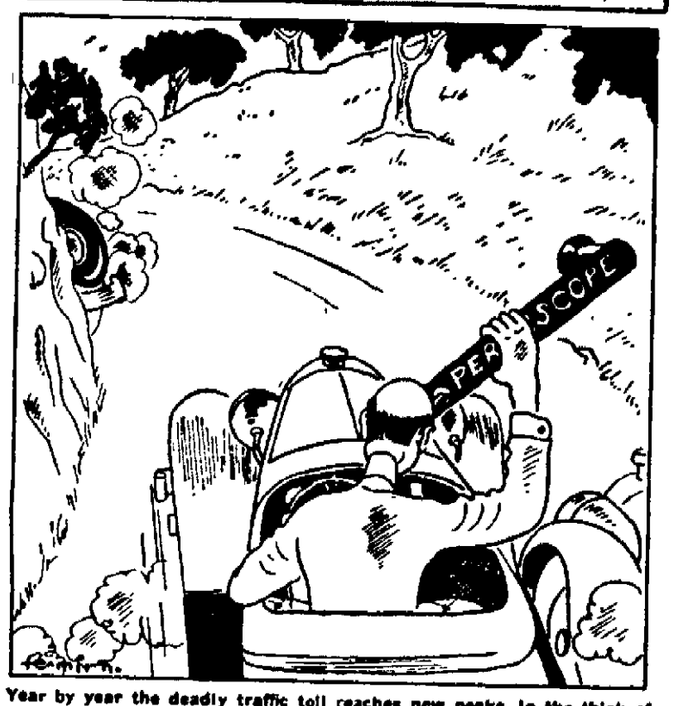
Throughout the ages, scents have exercised a fascination over mankind. In far-off days, says Tit-Bits Magazine, incense and frankincense were used in the temples of most religious orders. On a granite tablet at the base of the Sphinx there is still to be seen a representation of King Thothmes IV burning incense as an offering. It was the custom to prescribe certain perfumes in cases of illness. The smell of white violets was said to be good for the digestion, while a perfume made from vine leaves was supposed to keep the mind clear.

Scent-making methods today do not differ greatly from those employed long before history was written. Everyday flowers still form the basis of all really good scents, although synthetic preparations are sometimes used in cheap varieties. There are 4,200 varieties of flowers grown in Europe, of which only 600 possess any agreeable smell. More than 3,000 types of blooms are disagreeable in odor.

Napoleon Encouraged Canning

What has Napoleon to do with tinned peaches—and all other fruits, fish and meat we buy in tins? This—that it was he who instituted the idea of preserving food of different kinds in tins. He thought how valuable fresh vegetables would be, from the health point of view, to the sailors aboard his ships which on long voyages he be offered a prize to anyone who could introduce a method of keeping vegetables fresh. The prize was won by a Frenchman named Appert, who prepared the idea of preserving the vegetables in sealed tins. And Appert's method of preserving is still broadly the one followed with all food tinning. — Pearson's Weekly.

Passing On Curves



Year by year the deadly traffic toll reaches new peaks. In the thick of the battle to reduce this loss of life are state Motor Vehicle Administrators. Twelve of them, officers and members of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, have contributed a series of articles describing the major causes of automobile accidents. Number Four of the series: "Passing on Curves" follows:

By J. P. BICKELL
Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Ontario, Canada
President, Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

NO aviator relishes the job of flying blind. Yet many who would not risk piloting a plane, in an automobile frequently expose themselves to foolish dangers that are very similar to blind flying. They do this trying to pass another car on a curve or a hill when it is impossible to know if another vehicle is approaching in the opposite direction. Accidents caused by passings on a curve or hill totaled 9,540 last year, bringing death to 470 and injury to 10,330 persons, according to statistics compiled by a member company of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

To enter a traffic lane in which an oncoming car or truck or bus may burst into view at any moment, creating a perfect setting for a head-on collision, is plain gambling. The odds are against you. Even if you win, the return — a few seconds of time gained—is so meagre as to make the risk silly.

Once a driver gets caught along side the car he is trying to pass, a collision can not be avoided unless the oncoming vehicle drives off the road into another kind of accident. This sort of chance-taking is dangerous, for sooner or later the law of averages asserts itself.

Curves of themselves are a menace. Here the danger of skidding is at its greatest. Accident statistics show that many drivers do not know how to round a curve. Remember first that a curve to the left requires even more care than a curve to the right. In the former case you are on the outside of the turn and a skid will throw you off the road. The important thing is to reduce speed before the curve is reached. Then it is possible to accelerate, keeping the rear wheels pushing the car and defeating the danger of skidding. Cutting off the gas or braking while on a curve causes skidding.

Do not pass on curves or hills!

THEY'VE GOT YOUR NUMBER

[Editor's Note: New York State's motor vehicle commissioner, Charles A. Hartnett, believes that automobile accidents are the result of "deliberate acts." This is the first of a series of six stories telling why, prepared by The Associated Press and The Freeman. The startling facts he relates about accidents are gleaned from records the state keeps about every motorist.]

1935 Brings More Motor Deaths.

By Charles A. Harnett,
New York State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP).—During the year 1934 automobile accidents in the state of New York claimed one life every three hours.

Eight persons were killed every day.

Two hundred forty-enght persons were killed every month.

Nearly 3,000 persons were killed during the year.

In the same period 106,348 persons were injured, or at the rate of one every five minutes, 296 every day, or 8,870 every month.

The World War took the lives of 5,194 soldiers from the State of New York, but automobile accidents in 1933 and 1934 claimed 5,868 lives in the state.

And, of especial concern to state authorities, is the fact that the first six months of the current year shows an increase of automobile fatalities over 1934, although there was a drop of approximately 2,000 automobile accidents in the same period.

No estimate can be made of the economic loss caused by motor vehicle accidents. The family may be deprived of a bread-winner, widows and children left without support; there may be persons maimed for life and unable to care for themselves or their dependents; there are heavy expenses on account of medical attention and hospitalization.

The situation has become so acute that the state seeks some solution of the automobile accident problem.

Office-seekers are the rashest of all people, the way they make pledges. And the luckiest, the way they break 'em and get away with it.

Broadway: "Steamboat Round the Bend". One of the greatest comics of his day smiles and laughs through his last motion picture, a picture measured to fit his many talents perfectly, and Will Rogers, now a memory, lives for his brief hour again in the flickering brightness of the camera eye. To see this picture is to even more regret his passing for Mr. Rogers was just beginning to become an actor of great ability and this story of the Mississippi and the men who got their living as boatmen on the river is charming, mirthful and romantic entertainment. Mr. Rogers has his finest screen role as a medicine show doctor with a yen to be a steamboat captain. There is atmosphere, excitement and romance to be found in the play for the show doctor's nephew falls in love with a girl and commits murder because of her. An array of talent is to be found in the supporting group of players. They include Anne Shirley, John McGuire, Stepin Fetchit, Irvin S. Cobb, and Eugene Pallette. Put this one on the don't miss list.

Orpheum: "Keeper of the Bees." Neil Hamilton, Betty Furness, Hobart Bosworth and Edith Fellowes are the main dramatists to be seen in this Gene Stratton Porter story of an ex-soldier who finds new life and a new lease on happiness as maestro of the bee hives. It follows the book closely and the show should appeal to young and old alike. Selected short subjects complete the program.

Kingston: "Special Agent". The Warner Brothers studios seem to have the Indian Sign on the other producers when it comes to turning out government and gangster pictures. "G-Men" started a raft of similar pictures that never quite reached the brilliance of the Cagney film, and now the Warner outfit turns its attention to the undercover men in the U. S. government, the men who work in darkness and catch their prey by subtlety and trickery. George Brent plays a "special agent" in this story and does a fine job while Bette Davis furnishes the romantic interest. It concerns itself with the tracking down and eventual capture of Ricardo Cortez, big shot racketeer. For thrills, the drum of machine gun fire, violence and bloodshed, this show is a winner, but after it's all over, you get the impression that the handsome Mr. Cortez got a raw deal and that his performance was the outstanding characterization in the film. Here's some brittle yet enjoyable entertainment that ranks with the best of the government versus criminal dramas.

Tomorrow.

Broadway: Same.
Orpheum: Same.
Kingston: "After the Dance" and "Welcome Home." Injustice and treachery stalk grimly through the first feature at the Kingston with Nancy Carroll and the singing George Murphy catching most of the fireworks. The story tells of an ex-convict who becomes famous as a masked singer but who has the very devil of a time keeping his identity unknown. Love, however, solves the problem in the closing stanza of the film. "Welcome Home" is a riot of fun as it tells how three city slickers go to a small town for the express purpose of fishing for human suckers only to be taken in themselves. Raymond Walburn, Arline Judge and James Dunn are featured.

Kingston: Same.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Significant among the old familiar faces now visible again at the studios is the ruddy, tanned visage of Fred Niblo.

His iron-grey head bends now over a desk where he is preparing for shooting of his first picture in three years. It is "The Holy Lie," a translation from the German.

Once the name of Niblo was magic in Hollywood, not in the town's early days, but only five or six years ago. He had capped a stage career of starring and directing with a series of brilliant successes in the films, among them "Ben-Hur," "The Temptress," "The Three Musketeers," "Blood and Sand," and others with stars like Navarro, Garbo, Gilbert, and Valentino. Niblo and his wife (the former Enid Bennett) lived in a beautiful hill-top home (which they now rent to Katharine Hepburn).

Retired To Ranch

And then suddenly Hollywood heard little more of Fred Niblo. He came to town once in a while, but the old aura of picture fame had dropped from him. The Niblos live on their ranch at Clear Lake, north of San Francisco, and raise thoroughbred cattle, sheep and stock horses. Niblo today shows the effects of an outdoor life, of riding six to eight hours a day over his acres.

A 'New Flavor'

"After I left Metro," he explained, "I had plenty of offers to do pictures, but I did not think they were my kind of pictures.

"I kept on holding out, and holding out, and pretty soon I found it was a habit. Oh, I did do a few pictures here, but they were mistakes, pictures I should never have started."

Two films made in England he found equally disappointing, and when he returned to Hollywood a bank failure further enhanced his "disgust." That was when he said to Mrs. Niblo, "Come on, let's leave Hollywood and go live on that ranch we've always talked about."

It was Producer Sol Wurtzel who called Niblo from his retirement, and the director seems happy to have been called.

"I've kept up to date on pictures," he said, "and I sometimes think there are too many films of the same flavor. I think it would be good for pictures if somebody introduced an occasional new flavor. I don't say it's for me to do that—but I will say this 'Holy Lie' is an interesting story with fine possibilities."

On The Radio Day By Day

G. E. SUTTERFIELD

Time is Eastern Standard.

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—With no world series to worry about, the networks expect to give the biggest share of their next Saturday afternoon attention to football. Two games will be described, Minnesota vs. Nebraska on two networks, WJZ-NBC and WABC-CBS, and Iowa vs. Colgate on WEAF-NBC.

Of two special programs just arranged for Wednesday, one on WEAF-NBC at 3 p. m., will celebrate Lief Erickson Day, with part of the broadcast coming from New York and part from Oslo, Norway. From Oslo will be heard the prime minister of Norway and U. S. Minister Bittle. The other broadcast, on WJZ-NBC at 5.05 p. m., is to be in celebration of Y. M. C. A. Founders' Day.

Despite the early hour, 7 a. m., both NBC and CBS expect to broadcast the November 6 wedding ceremony of the Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Montague Douglas-Scott from Westminster Abbey, London.

Senator William E. Borah, treating on America's position in the Italo-Ethiopian situation, will speak on WJZ-NBC at 10 p. m. tonight. He will talk from his home in Boice, Idaho.

TUNING IN TONIGHT (MONDAY):

WEAF-NBC—7:15—Uncle Ezra; 8—Ted Hammerstein's Show; 9—Gypsies; 9:20—Grace Moore; 10:30—Radio Forum, Stewart McDonald; 11:35—Jesse Crawford, Organ.

SCOUTS OF TROOP 12 GO ON ANNUAL FALL HIKE

Sunday, October 6, fourteen Scouts of Troop No. 12 took their annual fall hike up in back of Sawkill. They went out the Sawkill Road and up a woods road. A number of gray squirrels and chipmunks were seen and also a pheasant and a great blue heron. On the way up the party was divided into two portions and became separated, but united with little difficulty. Some of the Scouts brought food with them. Fires were kindled and the food cooked. One Scout's generous turnout out fine, so he was told, but he himself had two of them, for they seemed to be in great demand. The boys arrived home about 6:30, tired but happy.

All Readers "Go Blind" on Every Line of Type

Minneapolis.—The eye "goes blind" at least three times while reading a line of type. Tests made with a recorder developed by Dr. M. A. Tinker, of the University of Minnesota, showed that the average person's eye made eleven five little hops over each line and that the eye was blind for a portion of a second between the hops. The best readers take three or four more fixations in covering a line of type.

An Ancient English Law

Up to 1827 in England a man accused of a felony could not be brought to trial without his consent because conviction usually meant not only death and the forfeiture of all his property but lifelong poverty and degradation for his family as well, writes J. M. Hicks, Oakland, Calif., in Collier's Weekly. Hence, both the guilty and those who were afraid of an unfair conviction refused trials—and often died by torture inflicted to secure a confession.

Robins Winter in U. S.

Robins winter in the southern states and in northern Mexico. They are to be seen in flocks in winter through in the Gulf states, and are often killed in great numbers there, as they are in very good condition in the winter season. The migratory instinct is not so strong in this bird as in some others, and it often remains in sheltered places all winter. Its attachment to familiar spots is very strong.

Ballantines Ale in New Keglined Cans

Local distributors for P. Ballantine & Sons ale, "America's finest since 1840," began today distribution of their ale in the new keg-lined cans, as well as in bottles and kegs.

Distributors claim the new keglined can fully protects the ale from light, the enemy of flavor, and brings to the users of Ballantine's their favorite beverage at its best. They say there is also the added advantage in this new container that there are no bottles to return, no deposits to make.

Distribution of ale in the new keglined cans has been underway in some parts of the country since January 1 and they have proved very satisfactory wherever used, it is claimed.

SALMON RIVER AREA WILL BE EXPLORED

Gorge Surpasses Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Washington, D. C.—The Salmon river canyon in Idaho, one of the largest primitive areas in the United States, with a gorge surpassing the Grand canyon of the Colorado in depth and steepness, will be explored and photographed soon by the Salmon river expedition of the National Geographic society, according to an announcement made by Vice President John Oliver La Gorce.

The expedition personnel includes Philip J. Shenon and John C. Reed of the U. S. Geological survey; Maynard Owen Williams, staff representative of the National Geographic society; Robert Marshall, naturalist; D. Worth Clark, and two local boatmen.

Travel Upstream Impossible

"The Salmon river, which winds through rugged central Idaho, has been truly designated the 'River of No Returns,'" the announcement continues. "The falls and roaring rapids of the swift stream, and the sheer cliffs and ruggedness of the canyon, make travel upstream impossible. Downstream navigation can be accomplished only in stout, flat-bottomed boats reinforced to withstand numerous collisions with boulders in the rapids and low falls.

"The source of the river is in the rugged Sawtooth mountain range of southeastern Idaho. For many miles it flows north. About 20 miles below the town of Salmon it turns westward to enter the main gorge. The Salmon river expedition will begin its exploration at Salmon early in October, working down the river through the main gorge to the lower gorge. The latter begins at Whitebird and extends about 50 miles to the junction of the Salmon and Snake rivers.

"The wildly beautiful main gorge of the Salmon river is one of the loneliest regions in the country. For 150 miles along a deep, twisting canyon the only settlement is an occasional cabin. The rushing torrent has cut through several thousand feet of lava flows and deep into older formations beneath. The canyon's great depth, 6,000 feet in places, permits scientific study of formations more than a mile below the original surface of the main body of granite rock.

"The walls of the canyon itself are brilliantly colored. On Big Creek, in the canyon area, are extensive but little known prehistoric Indian picture writings that have not been studied.

"In addition, the forests and flowers of the region are expected to provide excellent subjects for the color camera. In the Salmon and the Clearwater mountains, bear, mountain goat, mountain sheep, deer, elk, and moose roam far from the usual haunts of man. In addition to salmon, there are several varieties of fish, including the rare red fish trout.

"The Salmon river area has an interesting historical background, beginning with the Lewis-Clark expedition to the Northwest in 1805. Stories of Indian warfare, picturesque early settlers and exciting gold rushes lend glamour to the region. Scenes of earlier gold rush days are again being re-enacted in this section of Idaho. The granite rock, known as Idaho batholith, through which the Salmon river cuts its way, is similar to that of the Coeur d'Alene region, source of most of the state's mineral wealth."

Farmer Wins by a Cob in Corn-Eating Contest

Ortonville, Minn.—Over a pile of 97 well chewed cobs, Burge Simonson, a lean, middle-aged Stone county farmer, claimed the corn-eating championship of the world.

Simonson defeated all comers in the annual Ortonville corn festival, which each year decides the champion corn eater of the land. Ed Ketterer, of South Dakota, for years the champion corn eater of the Northwest, was runner-up.

For seven hours and ten minutes Simonson gnawed away at the golden yellow beauties, eating ear after ear until all competitors were eliminated. Standing up, with an effort, Simonson wiped the last vestige of butter from his lips, patted his stomach approvingly and acknowledged the congratulations of the throng of eastern Minnesota farmers. Simonson won by one cob.

Two Species of Coral Snakes

There are two species of coral snakes, one known as the harlequin, being found in the Southwest, the other the Sonoran coral snake, in Arizona. They are recognized by their red, yellow and black rings and are to distinguished from similar but harmless snakes by the fact that the black rings are single and bordered by a pair of yellow rings, while the harmless species has single yellow rings bordered with a pair of black rings.

Perilously Long Supply Line In Ethiopia Seen By British As Italy's Chief Worry

The "Life Line" of Mussolini's Armies In Africa

The Italian soldier at the left, grim as he left home for northeast Africa, went to face more subtle foes than the typical Ethiopian warrior shown at the right. Military experts say that as Mussolini's men move away from the frontier they must depend upon mule transport, such as that shown in the middle photograph, for food, ammunition and other supplies.

By CHARLES P. NUTTER.

London (AP):—Recognized by British military strategists here as the greatest weakness in any Italian effort to subjugate Ethiopia is the perilously thin and dangerous long line of Italian communications.

Modernizing the old adage that an army moves on its stomach, observers here point out the almost staggering problems of transport, communications and supply involved in Mussolini's East African campaign.

A single break in this long line of communications, which stretches back from Eritrea nearly 2,000 miles to Italian ports, might turn a victorious march to blackshirts into the stupendous debacle of a retreat of 250,000 starving, thirsty men. . .

Suez Canal Called Vital.

Up to Eritrea the line of supplies stretches through peaceful friendly waters and country, provided the vital Suez Canal is not closed. Observers believe such a step would turn the East African campaign into a nightmare of rout.

At Eritrea, however, Mussolini's real problem, of keeping his line of supplies open through enemy country, begins. It is well beyond 500 miles from Asmara to Addis Ababa—and the route lies through swamps and across deserts, high mountains and deep canyons. Use of wheeled vehicles through this country is impossible, and probably could be accomplished only after years of labor by Italian road and bridge builders.

Afoot and upon mules, horses and camels, Mussolini must be prepared to move supplies along this perilous route toward the Ethiopian capital. Every foot of the ground is certain to be contested by savage fighters, challenging not alone the army vanguards but the thousands of troops who must be left at periodic intervals to guard the line of supply.

Lesson Found in Old War.

Military experts say that for every man an army has on the firing line, there must be ten behind the lines to keep supplies coming up. This ratio must automatically be increased in Ethiopia by the staggering difficulties of nature and lack of modern transport.

An index to what the Italians may expect is encountered in a survey of the campaign directed by General Sir Robert Napier who defeated Emperor Theodore in the Anglo-Ethiopian war of 1867-1868.

At that time armies needed few of the supplies necessary today and Napier moved away from the Red Sea with 42,000 soldiers, and about 10,000 baggage carriers and men of all work.

He reached and stormed Magdala with only 3,500 men, less than 10 per cent of his original strength. The rest were claimed by rigors of the campaign, enemy attacks, or strung back along the long line to the base.

The history of this campaign leads English observers to believe that if Italy hoves 250,000 men out of Eritrea, less tha 25,000 ever would reach Addis Ababa. There they would face a precarious fate, dependent upon the strength of their enemies in that sector and the ability of the men they left behind to keep food, ammunition, medicine, clothing and even water coming forward.

Staff Warns Mussolini.

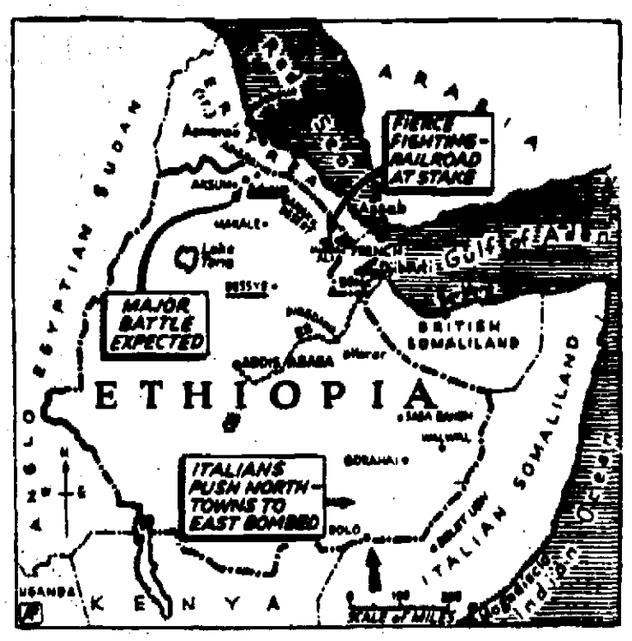
A break in this line for even a week might reduce the Italian army to starvation. Living off the country would be impossible for such an army. With no ammunition factories or other industry in the empire, the troops would be wholly independent upon what came forward from Italy.

All of these factors are believed to have been detailed by the Italian general staff in a report submitted to Mussolini months ago. Military sources here understand Il Duce exploded when he read its recommendations to forego the African adventure because of its almost insurmountable difficulties, and tore up the report, exclaiming:

"Fascism will march straight ahead to victory."

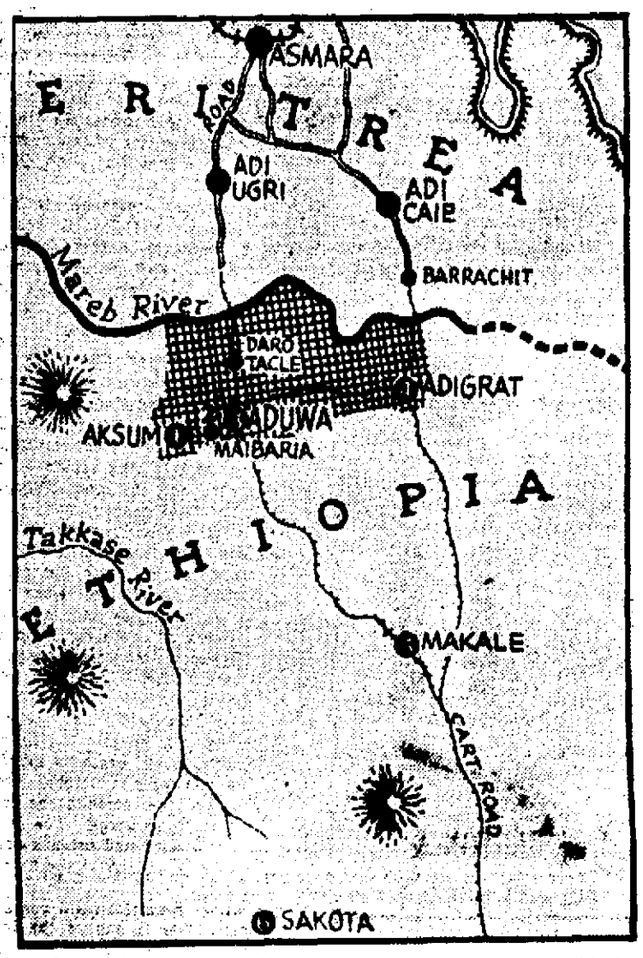
The general staff report, reliable sources here understand, said it would require half a million men from 8 to 10 years completely to subjugate the Ethiopians. The cost, they said, would be prohibitive.

WHERE ITALIANS ARE ADVANCING



This is a map of Ethiopia indicating the three areas into which Italian troops are advancing. Fierce fighting is reported at scattered points. One of the main Ethiopian forces is believed to be at Dessye.

ROUTE OF MAIN ITALIAN ATTACK



This map indicates the principal Italian route of attack into Ethiopia, along with the towns of Aksum (1), Maibaria (2), Aduwa (3), and Adigrat (4), which have fallen into Italy's hands during the first few days of battle. Dispatches state that the Ethiopians have concentrated heavily around Makale (5), and a major battle possibly will occur there. Meantime, Italian planes continued their bombing raids, with Sakota (6) being one of the principal Ethiopian towns in the section to suffer from the raids. (Associated Press)

AS ITALIANS MOVED INTO BATTLE POSITION

These pictures, transmitted by radio from Rome, show Italian soldiers as they moved their big guns into line for the attack on Ethiopia. At top, artillerymen move a heavy cannon over the rough terrain of the Eritrean-Ethiopian border. Below, a big gun being pulled into position for firing. Shortly after the photos were made, the attack began. (Associated Press Photos)

Busy Week Outlined For Legion Members

The families of the officers and Kingston Post American Legion members of the active legionnaires of Kingston Post will have to dispense with the charming company of the ex-service men for the better part of the coming week. Commander E. A. Freer has outlined a busy week.

The program for the week will be:

Monday night at 8 p. m., Drum Corps rehearsal and meeting. Plans will be discussed for attending the third district celebration in Catskill Sunday, November 3. The executive committee will hold an important meeting.

Tuesday night all members are requested to attend the first meeting of the membership campaign. Chairman Lester Barth has his head full of ideas.

Wednesday night, meeting of the Victory Ball committee at 7:30. All members of this committee are requested to be present.

Thursday night, the Post will entertain the County Legion. Commander Ray Woodard will preside. As the county commander is a member of Kingston Post a large attendance is requested. The ladies of the Auxiliary will meet at the same time. After the meetings Kingston Post will serve refreshments. Dancing will also take place. Charles Kelse will furnish the music with his famous Reynolds street gang.

Friday night, championship match games of pool—Mattie Spina vs. Al Georges; Roy Markle vs. Roy Marks; Jack McMaans vs. Lester aBrth. After the matches Mike Hickey will relate his experiences as Elmer at the Rochester convention.

Saturday night, rest and relaxation.

25 Reported Killed In Chicago Explosion

Chicago, Oct. 7 (AP)—Twenty-five persons were reported killed and an undetermined number injured today in a terrific explosion at the Nubian Paint and Varnish Company on Chicago's west side. A half hour after the blast seven bodies had been removed.

Card Party

The Good Will Club will hold a card party at Odd Fellows Hall, Broadway and Brewster street, on Tuesday evening at 8:15. The public is invited to attend. There will be refreshments.

Italian Forces Capture More Ethiopian Towns

Ethiopian force reported approaching.

Every precaution was taken to maintain the advance by mechanical means, without the sacrifice of soldiers.

Italian losses among the force of 75,000 were negligible. Only one lieutenant and some Italian and native Eritrean troops were killed and a number wounded, military authorities said.

Some reports said 1,700 Ethiopians had fallen in the aerial bombardment of Aduwa which broke the backbone of its resistance. A body of 7,000 Ethiopians defended stubbornly the forts between Daro Tacle and Amba Beesa, however, before they were driven out by the superior Italian artillery.

The Ethiopian defense then persisted only spasmodically from mud huts dotting the mountain sides along the line of march.

General Maravigna's soldiers—the Gavanana Division, one of the first to be mobilized and sent to East Africa last February—marched into the city at 10:30 a. m. yesterday (2:30 a. m., eastern standard time).

Preceded by tanks, the troops poured into the city.

Erect Monument

On the heels of the soldiers came army trucks bearing a huge stone monument carved in recent weeks by the soldiers and bearing the legend:

"To the Fallen Heroes of Aduwa."

The men carried the monument to Aduwa's principal square, erected it and presented arms.

An Italian trooper whose family lived in Aduwa was granted his request to be in the vanguard of the occupation. He was one of the first to enter the city and hastened to his home where he found his family safe.

Although the Italian reconnaisance were ordered to be on the alert, Premier Mussolini's pilot son, Vittorio, told this correspondent he had not yet sighted a single Ethiopian airplane and that an aviation field near the border was empty.

Count Galleazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Il Duce, who dropped the first bomb over Aduwa in command of the "desperate" squadron, said he hoped to remain in East Africa for the duration of the war.

The planes of his and other squadrons scattered thousands of leaflets over the populace of East Tigre province, seeking to win the people over from Ethiopia to Italy.

Other leaflets were dropped on monasteries and churches, addressed to monks and priests.

Some results were seen from the psychological campaign as Italians approached some villages.

The civil populace marched out with priests at their head carrying crosses. When they sighted the Italian troops, they dipped their crosses to the ground as a sign of submission.

Selassie To Lead 120,000 Fighters

By JAMES A. MILLS

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 7—Ethiopian sources disclosed today that Emperor Haile Selassie plans to lead an army of 120,000 fighters into the field against Italy within two weeks.

This disclosure was made as rumors circulated in the capital that Italy has proposed peace terms to the Emperor. One of the imperial advisers called the rumors "almost" true, but decline further comment.

(In Rome, Italian officials said peace terms were farthest from their thoughts.)

Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, the Italian minister, said he was not informed of such a proposal.

It was stated that the Emperor's personal army would have as its backbone 5,000 of his modernly equipped imperial guards.

The Emperor was expected to take this force toward Dessye, which lies at a strategic middle distance in the triangle formed by Addis Ababa, Aduwa, and Mount Mussa Ali. He was to proceed the first 30 miles from Addis Ababa on muleback, then to go by automobile.

The road over which the Emperor and his warriors will pass now is being repaired. Haile Selassie will be accompanied by Ras Mulugueta, the most distinguished Ethiopian general, who, in 1930, saved the present Emperor from Ras Guksa of Wollo Galla when that prince raised a rebellion and attempted to seize the throne.

Ethiopians said that within two weeks the Emperor would have in his command a total of 600,000 well-armed warriors plus 400,000 variously armed men.

The members of the Swedish military mission have resigned their commissions in the Swedish army in order to serve Haile Selassie.

Ras Desta Damtou, the son-in-law of the Emperor, is leaving for Sidamo, Ogaden province, where he has been appointed commander of the southern forces totaling 250,000.

The Belgian military mission is leaving Addis Ababa tomorrow.

Imdjarmatch Bayamen Merid, another son-in-law of the Emperor, with 40,000 men, is to cooperate with Desta Damtou in Ogaden.

Ras Emrou, the Emperor's cousin, with his 100,000 men has been ordered to remain in reserve in Gojjam province.

The government today admitted officially that the Italians occupied Aduwa and Adigrat yesterday, saying that the occupation was accomplished without resistance.

It was stated that the evacuation of these two towns was made in an orderly manner according to prearranged plan and that the Ethiopians now were stationed outside these points.

A government official said that the occupation of Aduwa had no military significance and that in accordance with a long-standing plan, the Ethiopians intended to make their main stand in mountain positions which they consider impregnable 40 miles south of Aduwa.

The Ethiopians themselves do not appear greatly impressed by the Aduwa occupation since the town is mainly of mud construction and with only sentimental and historical importance.

Although defending the boundaries of his empire against Italy, the emperor still considered the League of Nations the only agency competent to settle the conflict.

This attitude was reflected in a government statement to the press in connection with the report of the League council's committee of 13.

"We have complete confidence in the wisdom and justice of the statesmen comprising the council, and they alone are able to terminate the unjust agression of which Ethiopia became the victim even before the League's pacific solution to our difference was concluded," the statement said.

Place All Hope in League.

"Obliged to defend our territory, we remain loyally attached to the peace which is essential to that progress of our country which we undertook to achieve. We place all hope in the aid of the League, with which we wish further to collaborate on all circumstances within the framework of the covenant."

Points in the committee's report especially pleasing to the emperor were said by the government statement to be:

1. That he did all in his power to suppress slavery.

2. That he observed regulations concerning arms traffic.

3. That he unified the country and made the central authority better obeyed.

4. That Ethiopia demanded, but Italy refused arbitration.

5. That Ethiopia accepted recommendations of the League committee of five in contrast to Italy's pretension to civilize Africa.

6. That the committee insisted every solution of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict must rest on independence, territorial integrity and security of Ethiopia, and that every solution must be accepted by every member of the League.

7. That Italy continued its war preparations.

8. That Ethiopia was ready to suspend the question of possession of Walwal, scene of a frontier incident, and accept an investigation and decisions of neutral observers, while Italy demanded complete freedom of action, declaring the dispute could not be settled through procedure under the League covenant.

Italian Consuls Missing.

The Italian minister here asked the government to ascertain the whereabouts of the Italian commercial attache at Makale, 20 miles from the Aduwa front, from whom he had heard no word for several weeks.

Vinci-Gigliucci also asked the authorities to locate the Aduwa consul, who disappeared after thanking Ras Seyoum, governor of East Tigre province, for his kind treatment.

The minister instructed his legation staff to prepare their passports, baggage and archives in readiness to leave Friday if necessary.

He was awaiting instructions from Rome concerning his recall.

A grave situation arose between the Italian and Ethiopian governments owing to the unknown fate of the Italian consul whom Mussolini ordered to leave northern Ethiopia.

Vinci-Gigliucci said that on October 1 the Aduwa consul, armed with the necessary diplomatic documents and a travel permit prepared to leave for Eritrea, but that local authorities allegedly prevented him from doing so.

The Italian minister said that when he questioned the Ethiopian foreign minister, he was informed the Aduwa consul attempted to leave, but was without a permit, causing disorder.

Subsequently, Vinci-Gigliucci said, the consul was allowed to depart accompanied by an escort of Ethiopian soldiers. Today his fate was still unknown.

Apparently he was somewhere in the fighting zone between Aduwa and the Eritrean frontier.

Likewise, the whereabouts of four Italian consular officials who left Gondar September 24 for Gallabat on the Sudan border.

The British legation instructed the Sudan frontier officials to telegraph any news of the arrival of Italians, but no word was received.

Italian legation officials said that if evil had befallen the consular officials, most serious consequences would follow, probably resulting in an ultimatum from Mussolini for their immediate delivery.

Series Now 3-2 As Cubs Take Sunday's Game From Tigers

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit, Oct. 7 (AP)—Back to the Michigan icebox came the 1935 World Series today, and to the jubilance of the Chicago Cubs, clinging desperately to their forlorn chance for baseball glory despite Lon Warneke's stunning shoulder injury, to the mutterings of the home town Tigers, balked one game short of their goal, to the general hurly-burly of a bitter, no-quarter battle, was added, a religious complication.

This is Yom Kippur, the solemn day of atonement, strictest holiday on the Jewish religious calendar, and yet Hank Greenberg, of orthodox descent, is ready again to play first base and hit in the cleanup position for the Tigers on the day his religion says he can do no such thing.

Warneke Injures Shoulder

As Warneke, hero of the Cubs' pitching forces, retired to the sidelines with a pulled muscle in his right shoulder, probably out for the rest of the series, Greenberg reported that his injured wrist was healed enough to let him join the Tigers in their assault on Larry French, Cubs' veteran southpaw, in the drive today for the one victory holding them off from Detroit's first world baseball championship. Tommy Bridges, curve ball star, who beat the Cubs 8 to 3 in the second game, was Mickey Cochrane's pitching choice for the sixth game of the series standing 3 to 2 in the home team's favor.

Greenberg's recovery, as shifting lineups brought out a new Cub hero in Chuck Klein, former National League batting champion, who was just another forgotten man when the series started, alone interested Manager Cochrane, a tough Irishman with everything at stake.

"Hank says he can play, and that's what he'll do if he's really all right again," said Mickey. "Furthermore, Flea Clifton stays at third base."

Clifton Replaces Owen

That leaves Marvin Owen, Tigers' regular third baseman, sitting on the bench for the first time in the series, forced out by a flashy youngster who hasn't hit safely yet, though he's belted some fine drives, and has put on a spectacular fielding display around third. It leaves Marvin, who isn't Jewish, free to substitute for Greenberg, who is, on the abstinence part of the sacred holiday, when from sundown last night to sundown tonight, there must be fasting, prayer and no work of any kind. But anyway, Hank's going to play if his arm, injured in the first two games, feels right in practice.

Cochrane also said he would use Gerald Walker in center field if Larry French pitches as announced. Walker is considered more effective at the plate against a southpaw than Jo-Jo White, who has played every series game so far.

It's All Mixed Up

Everything is so mixed up now, with the battle between the Cubs and Umpire Moriarty even hotter than the National League Champions' struggle with the Tigers, that Warneke's injury might even portend a final victory for the Cubs, equalling one of the rarest feats in the World Series history. Before Warneke, going six innings before his shoulder quit, and big Bill Lee, beat the Tigers and Schoolboy Rowe 3 to 1 yesterday in the last of three games in Chicago, the Tigers led three games to one.

Only the Pittsburgh Pirates of 1925 were able to fight back from that narrow edge of defeat to win out in a seven game series. The Pirates, trailing 1 to 3 against the Washington Senators that time, did it the only way it can be accomplished, by sweeping the last three straight.

When Warneke left he had pitched six scoreless innings, allowing but three hits, two of them in the fourth, and was well on the way to his second series shutout. He has allowed nine hits in 17 innings. He blanked the Tigers 3 to 0 in a duel with Rowe on the opening day.

Chuck Klein to Rescue

The lead Chuck Klein gave Warneke when he banked a home run deep into the right field seats in the second inning after Billy Herman had tripled, lasted Lee, who went in at the start of the seventh, all right, but there were some desperate moments for the umpire baiting Cubs, even though they added another off Rowe in the seventh when Herman's second extra base belt, a double, scored Augie Galan, who had reached first on a ground ball error by Owen at first.

Cornell-Rescue Wins Two from Artillery

The Cornell-Rescue Social Club took both games of their post-season doubleheader with the 156th Field Artillery 4-0 and 3-1 at Black Park Sunday. The featured hitters were Krom, with a home run, and Finley with a triple for the C. & R. "Diz" Snyder and "Daffy" Vogel, the winning pitchers, were not hampered by the unfavorable weather, both allowing but three hits in each game. Booking Manager Vogel claims his Cornell-Rescue boys are the undisputed champions of the city by virtue of their victories over all the leading teams. He would like to hear from any leading team disputing his claim, concerning a game next Sunday.

Maroon And White Varsity Drops Opener To Liberty, 19-1

Exhibiting a brand of football not consonant to Kiss-coached teams, Kingston High School's football team dropped its season opener to a much underrated Liberty team at Liberty Saturday.

The flow of the game was marred by frequent fumbles and unnecessarily rough playing on the part of both teams. The majority of the roughness was done, however, by the Maroon players, as can be seen in the figures which show that Kingston was penalized 75 yards to Liberty's 30.

Rifenbary kicked off, a poor kick, which was caught and run back to the Liberty 28 yard line. After an incompleted pass, Hahn skirted end for 9 yards and then hit the line in make the necessary yard for a first down. A reverse and another try at the line netted only 4 yards. Kelly threw a pass which Hopper deflected into Glenn's hands. Glenn ran it back to Liberty's 35 yard line. On the first Kingston play from scrimmage Tiano circled the end and raced 35 yards for a touchdown. Maines added the extra point on a plunge.

Another poor kickoff was received on Liberty's 30 yard line, but the receiver fumbled on the Liberty 45 yard line and Kingston recovered. Hopper circled the end for 35 yards to the 12; Tiano made 7 over tackle; after making a first down, the Maroon was held to two yards in three tries and a fourth down pass was grounded, giving Liberty the ball on their 20.

Kelly kicked to Tiano at midfield, and he ran it back to the Liberty 45 yard stripe. Maines made one yard at the line, a pass was founded, and Tiano kicked to Boudain, who was tackled on the 5 yard line. Liberty kicked on the first down, the ball going out on the 46 yard Liberty line.

Maine tried the line, made 1 yard and fumbled. Liberty, constantly playing heads-up ball, again recovered the ball. A pass, Kelly to Hahn, gave them a first down on the Kingston 45. Hahn made 3 yards through the line and a reverse from Kelly to Woodward lost ons.

At this point, four Kingston substitutions were made, Bowser replacing Schoonmaker at tackle, Buddenhagen for Carle at guard, Wilbur for Captain Hopper at left half, and Davis for Studer at end.

After an incompleted pass, Liberty kick out of bounds on the Kingston 33. Tiano reeled off 12 yards to the 45 only to fumble and again lose the ball to Liberty. Two plays lost 8 yards and Liberty kicked to Tiano on the 10. He ran it back to the 15 as the quarter ended. Byrne replaced Tiano at this point.

Glenn kicked to Liberty's 45. From there Liberty started its first touchdown drive which ended with Captain Quinn taking it over on a pass from the 12 yard line. During this drive, Liberty completed three passes in as many attempts for 16, 6, 13 and 12 yards. The try for extra point failed, leaving Kingston in the lead, 7-6.

Zeek replaced Terminello in the Kingston line. Liberty kicked a poor kick, to Glenn on the 2 He returned the kick to the Kingston 41 yard line. Hopper made around end, Maines lost a yard, Tiano was stopped at the line scrimmage for no gain. A pass was grounded, and the punt on fourth down was returned to the After one stab at the line, Liberty kicked, but the kick was blocked and rolled to the 4 yard line, where Liberty recovered. This was one of the many times when the ability to recover a loose ball would have placed the Maroon in scoring position. As it was, a poor kick was taken by Tiano and returned to the 2 yard line but a Kingston was holding on the play and the penalty, inflicted from the point of the holding, gave Kingston the ball on the 28 yard line.

A pass was grounded, Tiano made 3 to the 25, Hopper skirted end for 16 yards to put the ball on the yard line. Again a Maroon scoring threat was in vain, stopped this time by the whistle ending the half.

Liberty opened the second half by kicking off to the 10. Tiano returning the kick to the 29. Tiano lost a yard to the 28 and Kingston was penalized 15 yards to the 13 and Tiano's kick went out on the Kingston 45 yard stripe. Here Liberty started its second touchdown drive this time aided by another 15 yard penalty against the Maroon. This time, Mike Kelly, sub for Boudain, took the pigskin over after his brother Tom put it right on the goal line. Woodward made good the extra point, giving Liberty the lead 13-7.

Liberty kicked off and Kingston returned the ball to the 20, only to be given the ball on the 15, with a clipping penalty inflicted. On the first play Liberty intercepted the Kingston pass and ran it back to the Maroon 8 yard line. Here it seemed that the locals would thwart the touchdown thrust of the mountaineers, when in two plays they pushed Liberty back three yards. But again the weak pass defense stuck out like a sore thumb, and a pass from Kelly to Hahn added a big 6 to the Liberty score. The try for extra point failed.

Liberty again kicked off, this time the ball rolling over the Maroon goal line for a touchback. From the 20 Maines gained only 5 yards in three tries, so Tiano kicked to the Liberty 35 yard stripe. Liberty reeled off a first down, and then after two plunges failed to gain, kicked to the Maroon 10. Byrne fumbled as he was hit, and Liberty again recovered. Now, however, the locals were desperate. A line plunge gained only 1 for Woodward, and three passes were knocked down, giving the Maroon the ball.

Maines made 3 through the line, Nyulassy lost a half yard on an end around play, and a pass was grounded. Liberty was penalized 15 for roughing, giving the locals the ball on their 27. Hopper made 2 at the line and another pass was intercepted on the 38. Spada replaced Carle at guard for Kingston. Again the Maroon showed a superiority which it should have exhibited throughout the game when it threw three plays for losses totaling 16 yards. The Liberty kick went out on the Kingston 22.

Again Kingston failed to complete two successive passes, and the ball Tiano, on a fake pass which spread the defense, rounded left end for 3 yards to the Liberty 41. Hopper made 12 around the other end to the 29 and again Kingston was in scoring position. A lateral was thrown away, and four men hit the before a Liberty man finally had on to it.

Liberty kicked on the second down to the Liberty 47. From here, the locals drove through to a second touchdown. Aided by a 15 yard penalty against Liberty, Tiano, Hopper and Maines carried the ball in turn with Tiano finally taking over from the 10½ yard line. Maines added the extra point. With only 20 seconds left to play, Kingston kicked off and the Liberty receiver, refusing to take a chance on Kingston recovering a fumble before it touched the ground, ran a few steps and lay down. The game ended before the teams could line up.

Throughout the game, Kingston lost many scoring chances by fumbling, and handed Liberty a few by their poor pass defense. The team goes to Schenectady next week, and is due for a good trimming unless they show vast improvement over Saturday's performance.

He agged it on the 30 yard stripe and an 20 yards for Kingston's second ouchdown

The pass Cullum to Debrosky ised the local's score to 13 after is touchdown and ended the point aking for the day.

One spectacular run by Minasian, ho clicked off about 23 yards on he dash, the intercepting of a Jamai- a pass by Al Flanagan, furnished he other thrills for the remaining art of the quarter.

The third quarter was uneventful, except for a 55 yard punt by Cullum, is 13 yard run for a first down, a ateral pass—Cullum to Debrosky to Kelder—for another first down, and assidy's 15 yard run for Jamaica.

Kingston kept up the lateral pass- g in the last quarter. Burgevin, Minasian and Cullum trying one soon after it started. After Debrosky had caught a pass in spectacular fashion, Kingston lost the ball near the Ja- aica goal on a fumble. The visitors ried a pass, Blaunelt to Marn, but it went bad. Cassidy punted for one f the longest boots of the day, 60 ards or so, and Minasian returned it to Jamaica's 38 yarder.

Cassidy intercepted one of Cul- m's passes and ran 25 yards before e was tackled by VanDerzee and hen tossed an aerial to Blaunelt, who as brought down by Debrosky. Mina- ian intercepted a pass and Cullum, arrying the ball on couple of plays ater, was knocked out. Cassidy re- overed the ball for Jamaica. He hrew a pass to Blaunelt, who was rought down by Debrosky, who in- ercepted a pass on the next play, re- eiving the ball for Kingston.

Burgevin tore off 13 yards for a ellow Jacket first down, received a ass for another. Debrosky grabbed nother for a big gain and then an- ther to plant the ball on the three ard line as the whistle sounded the nd of the game.

Yesterday's win gives Kingston wo victories, the first having been won over the Newburgh Recrea- ion.

Next Sunday at the Fair Grounds he opposition will be furnished by he Watervliet Garnets, a fast ap- ate team made up of the best grid ents in the community the 11 rep- esenting mill cities surrounding it. Game time is 2 30 p. m.

Army Is Victorious Over W. & M. by 14-0, Craig Star of Game

Although Army showed nothing spectacular in defeating William and Mary, 14-0, Saturday afternoon at Michie Stadium, West Point, a star was uncovered to follow in the footsteps of Jack Buckley, Red Cagle, Harry Wilson and other Cadet stars of recent years.

Jimmy Craig is the boy. He comes from Pauls Valley, Okla., and brought fame to that part of the country by figuring in the plays that brought Army its two tochdowns.

Craig scored in the second quarter for Army's first tally and it was his surprise pass to Jack Ryan on the fourth down late in the final period that enabled the Cadets to make their second score He entered the game at the beginning of the second period as a relief for Duke Nazzaro and played until after Army's second touchdown in the last quarter

This youngster, a recruit from last year's plebe team, dominated the field every second he was in the game, and would have assisted in the production of more Army scores only for the failure of the line to get him into the open However, he did get loose on occasions and when he did his extended runs were of exceptionally high merit So were his passing and punting

Army had difficulty getting across the goal line Four times in the first period the Cadets advanced inside the visitors' 20 yard line but could not score and before counting in the second period had hammered through to the 14 yard mark only to lose the ball on an intercepted pass.

After Craig entered the game in the second period, the Cadets gained 68 yards in eight plays for their first touchdown He covered himself with glory in the fourth quarter by heaving a forward pass to Ryan for the touchdown from the five yard line after the Cadets had been stopped on three rushes for the goal

William and Mary lost several opportunities in the second half to go into action for scores after recovering fumbles and intercepting passes. Once the Virginians got as far as Army's 10 yard line and once to the 16, but couldn't put the ball over. Bunch starred for the visitors with his long passes and well placed punts.

Watervliet Team Had Scout Sunday At Football Game

Walt Keefe, who played with the Watervliet Merriams, now the Garnets, was at Sunday's football game between the Yellow Jackets and Jamaica Cardinals.

But none of the Yellow Jackets, who play the Garnets, next Sunday, knew he was on the sidelines except Gus Steigerwald, trainer of the Wasps and a cagy old gridder himself, who can remember faces better than Dick Tracy.

"Seems to me I've seen that fellow before," remarked Gus as he passed along the line of patrons carrying an armful of blankets and a couple of helmets. To be more sure, Gus turned around and walked back. Keefe smiled just as Steigerwald was about to pass.

"I knew I was right," said Gus to himself. Then he walked up to Walt and asked him if he hadn't played against the Yellow Jackets some time or another.

"Sure," answered Keefe.

"With what team?" queried Gus

"Watervliet," he said.

"Pulling a fast one, eh!" laughed Gus.

Then the two shook hands. No, Gus didn't call a cop to escort Walt out of the park on the grounds that he was an old Watervliet player and a probable scout. It wouldn't have done any good. Keefe is a copper himself—a state trooper. He is working out of Saugerties with Sergeant James J. Cunningham, who let him have the afternoon to himself at the Fair Grounds while he awaited calls for duty and listened in on the world's series at the sheriff's office.

Keefe likes his football and always took Sundays off from patrol duty when he was around Watervliet to play with the team.

"They've got a pretty good club up there this year, I guess," he told Steigerwald. "The boys are all new, our old gang having joined the spectators' class."

But regardless of what Walt said, he looks husky enough to get right in there and play a bang-up game and probably would enjoy nothing better. He has been a good athlete always and besides having engaged in sports outside the troopers was a member of the famous rough riding team.

Al Espinosa Takes Indianapolis Open

Indianapolis, Oct. 7 (AP)—Al Espinosa, the Akron veteran of several golfing wars, is heading down the professional golf circuit $1,000 richer for his victory in the Indianapolis open tournament. He led the field of world famous shotmakers with a total of 288 for the 72 holes which ended Sunday.

The gallery fans still were talking today, however, about the scorching 65 on the final round by Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., stampeded from far down the list into a tie for second place at 290 with Ky Laffoon of Ravinia, Ill., the half-way leader, and Ray Mangrum of Pittsburgh.

Runyan's amazing round smashed the course record of 66 set in the 1926 western open by Walter Hagen and Harry Cooper. He fired six birdies as he blazed his way over the Highland course, ending with three successive birdies as he sank putts of from 20 to 25 feet.

The open champions of four countries competed in the four-day tourney, and only one, Jimmy Thomson, of Ridgewood, N. J., who holds the Australian title, landed in the money. He was far down with 296. Alfred Perry, British champion, failed to qualify for the final day's play, while Sam Parks, of Pittsburgh, American title holder, and Gene Kunes, of Northtown, Pa., wearer of the Canadian crown, wound up with 306 and 301, respectively.

Tying for second, third and fourth places, Runyan, Laffoon and Mangrum divided $1,850 of the prize money.

FederatedSportsmen's Clubs to Hold Field Day on October 13

As the game shooting season approaches many more shooters are taking advantage of the wonderful practice that skeet shooting affords

At the skeet field of the Ulster County Gun Club 19 shooters were in attendance last Thursday and 16 on Saturday

A fund has been started at the club to purchase nets to catch the unbroken "lost" targets

The use of such nets will, it is hoped, make a saving for the club as the targets can be used over again and perhaps cause another reduction in the cost of shooting to the members

Any contributions will be thankfully accepted About one-third of the cost of the nets has been received to date

The Ulster County Gun Club is making preparations for the annual field day of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs which will be held October 13 at the club

Eight teams have already entertained the two team races and over 50 individuals will compete for the county championship

A large prize list is assured

Local Tennis Stars Plan Organization of Basketball Quintet

The Kingston Tennis Club will put a basketball team on the local courts again this season after a rather disastrous start during the latter part of last year Hank Osterhoudt, ex-manager of the Tennis Club, will take charge of the quintet and announced this morning that practice would start in about four weeks and that the team, this year, will sprout new uniforms so they will at least look alike when they cavort around the court

The boys started in a little too late last year to really show what they could do, says Osterhoudt, but this season it will be a different story.

Three regulars have already been picked. John Burgevin, the lanky center of last year and former Bard College player, will again hold down the tap position and will be the key man on the offense, while Nick Fowler and Barnard Joy are assured of the two forward posts The guards will be picked from Stan Hancock, Howard Shurter, Don Swan and Hank Osterhoudt Hancock and Osterhoudt saw service in all the games last year and will probably get the starting call. Ed Strong has moved out of town but may also be available for service.

Chinese Remember College Rah-Rahs

Nanking.—The great impression which American university life has made on the Chinese national government was well illustrated at the annual meeting of the American University Club at Nanking. Six hundred graduates of colleges and universities in the United States attended the function, the vast majority being Chinese. Practically the entire 600 members are officials of the government. American college yells and songs showed that the Chinese had not forgotten their student life.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE R. JAEGER

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—A quiet but rather firm stock market today kept one eye on battle headlines and the other on the business picture.

The European situation, although as confusing as ever to traders, did not seem to stimulate either exceptional buying or selling.

Shares of Spiegel-May-Stern got up 4 points and others with lesser advances included Chrysler, General Motors, Stewart-Warner, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, Monsanto Chemical, Dupont, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas. The metals and utilities, along with a number of others, were about unchanged. American Can dropped a point.

Spiegel-May-Stern reflected the recovery pace by reporting an increase of 41 per cent in September sales over the same 1934 month. Stewart-Warner came to life when the company's directors declared a semi-annual dividend of 25 cents and an extra of as much. The last previous dividend of 50 cents was paid in November, 1931.

Quotation Not in Bible

"God helps those who help themselves." This quotation does not appear in the Bible. It is an old proverb that was first expressed in those words by Algernon Sidney in the Seventeenth century in "Discourses Concerning Government." It is also found in Benjamin Franklin's "Poor Richard's Almanack for 1733," as "God helps him who helps himself," and is later found in the same almanac for 1757, as "God helps them that help themselves." In George Herbert's collection of proverbs entitled Jacula Prurentum, it is found as "Help thyself, and God will help thee." A similar idea was expressed by Cervantes in "Don Quixote," and by LaFontaine in his fables. Even some of the ancient Greek writers of the Fifth century before the Christian era, hinted at the proverb. In "Persae" Aeschylus wrote: "To the man who himself strives earnestly, God also lends a helping hand."

Mouth Sediment in Yangtze River

Observations made at Hankow, 600 miles from the mouth of the Yangtze river, China, show that 5,000,000,000 cubic feet of sediment are carried past that point every year, to be deposited at the mouth of the river. Geologists say that within a few years the rocky islands which stand in shallow water at the mouth of the river will be surrounded by rice fields.

Cleopatra's Needle

Cleopatra's Needle, the most ancient monument in London, was cut out of solid stone 1,500 years before Cleopatra was born. The obelisk is 68 feet in height and weighs 180 tons. The huge stone was found lying overthrown in Alexandria in the Nineteenth century. It was hewn from the quarries of Assuan, far up the River Nile.

The Great Stone Face

The Great Stone Face is the name that was given by Nathaniel Hawthorne in one of his short stories, to the natural feature known also as the Profile or Old Man of the Mountain. It is on the upper ledges of Cannon mountain, in the Franconia range of New Hampshire, some 1,200 feet above the surface of Profile lake. It was discovered in 1805 by two workmen, who thought the face looked like that of Thomas Jefferson who was then President. The profile is composed of three separate masses of rock, one forming the forehead, another the nose and upper lip, another the chin; its length from forehead to chin is about 30 feet.—Detroit News.

Baseball Forces, Each Carrying Casualties, Return To Detroit

By ALAN GOULD.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 7 (AP)—The warring baseball forces, each carrying casualties, returned to Detroit today to find near balmy weather and a capacity of 46,000 on hand for the sixth world series game.

The Tigers, leading by 3 games to 2, relied on Tommy Bridges, slim right-hander, to pitch them into the championship with a revamped lineup.

With Larry French, a southpaw, picked to hurl for the Cubs, Detroit benched the light-hitting Jo-Jo White, center fielder, in favor of Gerald Walker, a right-handed batsman.

First Inning, Cubs.

Galan up—Strike one called. Ball one inside. Galan hit briskly through the box. The ball glanced off Bridges' leg but Rogell came in fast to pick it up and throw him out at first.

Herman—Ball one inside. Strike one called. Herman bounced out, Bridge to Owen.

Klein up—Ball one high. Klein lifted a high foul to Owen in front of the Chicago dugout.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

First Inning, Tigers

Clifton up—Strike one called. Clifton bounced to Hack and was thrown out by a stride at first.

Cochrane up—Ball one low. Strike one called. Cochrane lined a hit to left for a single.

Gehringer up—Gehringer singled sharply to the infield on the first pitched ball. Klein momentarily juggled the ball but recovered in time to keep Cochrane from going beyond second.

Goslin up—Strike one called. Foul strike two into the upper stands behind the Chicago dugout. Foul against the screen. Goslin popped to Jurges.

Fox up—Foul strike one against the backstop. Fox hit safely down the third base line for a double scoring Cochrane and sending Gehringer to third.

Walker up—Ball one low. Ball two outside, Ball three outside. Walker was intentionally passed to fill the bases.

Rogell up—Rogell rolled to French and Gehringer was forced at the plate, French to Hartnett.

One run, three hits, no errors, three left.

Second Inning, Cubs

Hartnett up—Strike one called, ball one outside, strike two swinging, Harnett fanned on a called third strike.

Demaree up—Ball one outside, foul strike one against the backstop, ball two low, ball three high, Demaree lifted a high fly to Foxx.

Cavarretta up—Strike one called, ball one high and inside, Cavarretta lashed a hit down the first base line. It glanced off Owen's glove and was misplayed by Foxx, who was charged with an error as Cavarretta ran to second.

Hack up—Strike one called, foul strike two into the lower boxes behind the plate. Hack grounded out, Gehringer to Owen.

No runs, one hit, one error, one left.

Second Inning, Tigers

Owen up—Strike one called. Strike two called. Ball one wide. Owen fanned, swinging.

Bridges up—Strike one called. Strike two swinging. Ball one low. Bridges bounced a high one through the box. Herman grabbed it on the run and threw to first for the putout.

Clifton up—Strike one swinging. Foul strike two into the dirt. Clifton fanned, swinging.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Third Inning, Cubs

Jurges up—Jurges cracked a single to center.

French up—fanned, swinging.

Galan up—Sharp grounder got past Gehringer for a scratch hit and Jurges raced to third.

Herman up—Lashed a hit to right scoring Jurges. Galan was called out at third on Fox's fine throw to Clifton. Herman remained at first base as the Cubs put up a big protest.

Klein up—Smashed the first pitch on a line to deep right and Fox made the catch backing up near the scoreboard.

One run, three hits, no errors, one left.

Third Inning, Tigers

Cochrane up—Grounded to Cavarretta and was tossed out.

Gehringer up—Gehringer dropped a hit in short left that Galan tried to make a shoe-string catch on but missed. It went for a double.

Goslin up—Grounded sharply to French and Gehringer was trapped between second and third. On the run-down Gehringer slid back into second as Goslin also tried to make the middle bag. The Goose then raced back to first and was tagged out by Cavarretta. Gehringer was safely on second again.

Fox up—Lifted to Galan in left center.

Fourth Inning, Cubs

Hartnett up—Lashed a single through the box.

Demaree up—Fanned on a called third strike that cut the outside corner.

Cavarretta up—Lifted a high fly to Rogell, who made the catch near second base.

Hack up—Smashed a hard grounder squarely at Gehringer and was tossed out at first.

Fourth Inning, Tigers

Walker up—Hit the first pitch to right for a single.

Rogell up—also lashed the first pitched ball for a base hit to left.

Owen up—Bunted along the third base line and Hartnett was forced out at second on Hack's fielding throw to Jurges. Owen reached first and Walker stopped at third. It was a fielder's choice.

Bridges up—Grounded sharply to Hack and Owen was forced at second. Hack to Herman but Bridges beat the relay to first as Walker scored.

Clifton up—Grounded to Jurges and Bridges was forced at second, Jurges to Herman.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

The funeral of William Day Newman, who died at Woodland on October 4, was held today at the parlors of A. Carr and Son, 1 Pearl street, at 2 p. m. The services were conducted by the Rev. Frank B. Seeley. Interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery. He is survived by three brothers, Howard of Passe-a-Grille, Fla., Jerome of Phoenicia, and Cornelius B. of Dumont, N. J., and one sister, F. Hope Newman of Woodland. He was a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. of Hackensack, N. J., a Spanish War veteran and a member of the Major John Eagle Camp of Hackensack. Interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery, Kingston. He was buried with military honors.

Funeral rites, attended by many neighbors and friends, were accorded Carl A. Young, Saturday morning, at Ruby. Mr. Young died at his home there Wednesday afternoon following a long illness. A requiem high Mass was offered for the repose of his soul at St. Wendelin's Church by the Rev. Andrew Dooley, with Prof. J. B. Schwalbach presiding at the organ and William Raible, soloist, singing the responses. At the offertory Mr. Raible rendered very beautifully "Ave Verum," and at the end of the service as the casket was carried from the church he sang the "Ave Maria." Burial took place in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery, Kingston, where the Rev. Father Dooley gave the final absolution as the body was lowered to the grave. A number of floral pieces sent by relatives, friends and former associates, were placed about the casket, as well as spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards. The bearers were Francis and James Young, Alton Hines, James Sweeney, Harold Halwick and Steven Saboles.

The funeral of Rosalie Elizabeth Cater was held from the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barent W. Cater, 19 Lafayette avenue, on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, and at St. Mary's Church at 9:30 where a solemn Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. Louis H. Cusack. The responses to the Mass were sung by the choir choir with Mrs. Frank Rafferty presiding at the organ. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and there were many spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards. The funeral cortege was long. At the entrance of the church the body was met by the entire 1935 graduating class of St. Joseph's parochial school, which acted as a bodyguard during the services. The pallbearers were classmates of the deceased: John Cook, Donald Abernethy, John Heneberry, Nicholas Amato, William Smith and Mario Goffredi. The entire student body accompanied the body to St. Patrick's cemetery in Catskill for interment, where the Rev. Edmund Burke pronounced the final absolution at the grave. During the day of the funeral the flag at the high school was lowered to half-mast.

Funeral services for John Francis Wojdan, who died at his home, 110 Newkirk avenue, Thursday evening, after a lingering illness, took place this morning at 9 o'clock at his late home, and at 9:30 o'clock from the Immaculate Conception Church, where the pastor, the Rev. Francis P. Borowski, sang a high Mass of requiem for the repose of his soul. The children's choir of the Immaculate Conception School, under the direction of the organist, Miss Theresa Gehringer, sang the responses. Father Borowski also conducted a brief service at the home prior to the funeral Mass, and later accompanied the cortege to Mt. Calvary Cemetery, where the burial took place, and pronounced the final absolution. The services were attended by a large number who came to pay their last respects to Mr. Wojdan, who was well and favorably known throughout the downtown section of the city and while the body reposed in the home, surrounded by palms and numerous floral pieces, hundreds called to pay their respects and offer words of sympathy to the bereaved family. Many young men, former fellow-workers and members of several social organizations also visited the late home. The bearers, all close friends of the deceased, were Frank Kruszynski, Louis Kolano, Leo Leskie, John Dunn, Walter Janaczek and Joseph Kwasnik.

RIFTON

Rifton, Oct. 7— The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Edward Balfe on Wednesday last. After roll call and reading of the minutes, details for the annual chicken supper were gone over and the ladies decided on the following menu: Roast chicken and dressing, mashed potatoes, carrots, peas, cabbage salad, cranberry sauce, pickled beets, apple pie and coffee. The supper will be held at Rifton Hall on Thursday, October 24, beginning at 5:30 p. m., until all are served. There will be a special meeting held to complete final details for the supper on October 17 at the home of Mrs. Paul Bailey and it is earnestly requested that every member attend this meeting, which is very important.

Fishing and Leisurely Cruise Lure Our Sea-Going President

By WILLIAM S. WHITE.

Washington, (AP).—The Pacific rolls again beneath the feet of a sea-going President, heading for the crossroads of two great oceans—the Panama canal, dedicated by him more than a year ago to "all nations in the needs of peaceful commerce."

The west traversed, the political speeches over, Franklin D. Roosevelt settles down for a fishing excursion and a leisurely cruise expected to bring him back to Washington early in November—another in a series that has taken him since 1933 to most of the far-away places where flies the American flag.

As governor of New York he established a mileage record for personal trips over the state and is in a fair way to set up another as a sea-roving President, adding, on this journey, 15,000 miles to a total already high.

Doctrine of "Good Neighbor."

Steaming through the canal on July 11 last year, Mr. Roosevelt became the first President ever to make the transit passage while in office.

The isthmus of Panama, however, was first viewed by Mr. Roosevelt in 1912.

Last year, in an address there, President Roosevelt spoke of the canal as being held in trust for all the world.

He travels through the canal this time having preached in advance at San Diego the doctrine of "good neighbor."

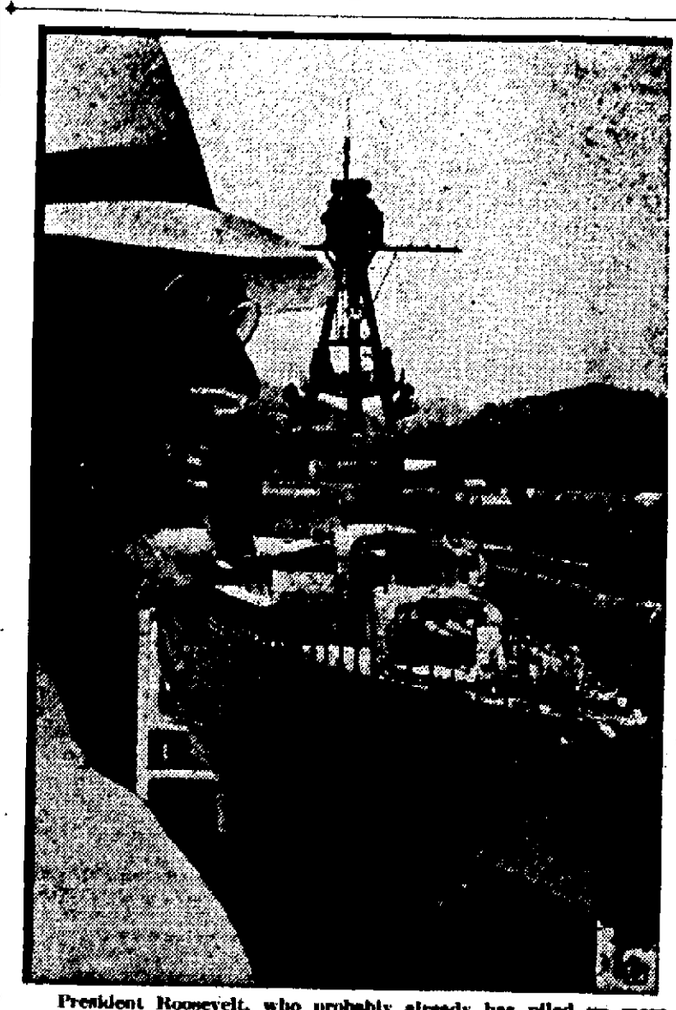
There, as war crept up in Ethiopia, he left behind a vow that this country "shall and must remain . . . unentangled and free."

"A Good Job."

From the tone of the whole western speaking trip observers believe Mr. Roosevelt sought to prove that the administration had done a good job in promoting recovery, and that it would pitch the battle of 1936 upon the proposition that, having done its job, it would stand upon the record.

This trip by the President, traveling aboard the cruiser Houston in the role of commander-in-chief of the navy probably will be his longest since assuming office. A 13,000-mile cruise last summer to Hawaii, through the Caribbean, to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Haiti, Colombia and the Panama canal, was a close runner-up.

The log, however, shows many another jaunt of varying length by the veteran voyager whose office is filled with ship models. These include several days down the Atlantic coast in September, 1933; two weeks in Atlantic waters in July of that year; a trip of several days as skipper of his own small schooner, the Amberjack II, in June; two weeks in Bahaman waters in April of 1934 and again in March of this year; sundry short cruises in the Potomac or in nearby waters.



President Roosevelt, who probably already has piled up more nautical miles during his stay in the White House than any other President, again is headed for the Panama canal and after that—"home." Last year, his visit to Panama was historic. He was the first President to visit the canal while in office. The picture shows the cruiser Houston, on which Mr. Roosevelt now is traveling, as it brought him through the canal last year.

Modest Quarters.

The White House has been established temporarily from time to time on the cruisers Houston and Indianapolis, the yacht Nourmahal; the government yacht Sequoia; and even the little Amberjack II.

The President's suite on the Houston, called the "flag quarters" because it is fitted out for an admiral, were planned for plenty of comfort but no show of opulence—a big combination cabin and messroom, equipped with facilities for reading and receiving visitors, adjoining a stateroom with separate bath. The mess table could seat 12 comfortably, more in an emergency. The quarters, furnished with a certain severity, are located on the top deck, so high as to make closing the portholes unnecessary except in a driving rain.

Mystic Numbers

The western world likes the number seven, using it to denote numerous things from the seven archangels to the seven chief virtues. But China's mystic number is five, writes Clinton Gordon, Birmingham, Ala., in Collier's Weekly. China has five planets, five elements, five colors, five virtues, five punishment and even five directions—north, east, south, west and center.
